Street Design 101

To the Editor:

By now many of you have heard about the upcoming planning process for the Main Street Corridor Enhancement Project which is being undertaken to develop a plan for improvements to Main Street. The planning process will seek input from the public through various public meetings during a week-long planning fair scheduled from April 18 to 22.

Local citizens are encouraged to interact with the design team to learn various concepts related to "Complete Streets" design standards and to provide ideas that will be used to shape the plan. This public input is critical to the process and the success of the overall project.

Many local citizens will recall previous discussions, meetings and other attempts over the years to develop plans for Main Street in Willits and may be thinking, "Here we go again," but the big differences in this current effort are that the Willits bypass and the relinquishment of the portion of Main Street from Highway 20 to the northern city Limit are becoming a reality. Caltrans is developing plans for the relinquished segment of Main Street and is welcoming ideas from the city prior to the completion of their plans, so this is a critical time to provide community direction regarding how we want our Main Street to look and function.

Over the past couple of years, the Main Street Merchants have gathered to discuss the future of Main Street. Central to these discussions is how to localize Main Street once Caltrans relinquishes the northern portion to the city. A different design and layout of Main Street will be possible once it's a city street, and it is hoped that many of these concepts can be considered by Caltrans for the southern portion of Main Street that will become an extension of Highway 20 after the bypass is completed.

Main Street Merchants have considered different traffic calming and design concepts that will slow traffic, improve safety, and ultimately, help make Main Street ours. Below are some of the terms and concepts that we have been exploring.

In developing a plan to create a friendlier, safer, more vibrant and more attractive street for our town, "Complete Streets" concepts will be discussed and designed where desirable and where practicable. Please keep in mind these are concepts that will be part of the planning discussions, but not all may be able to be included in the final design, given factors such as cost, right-of-way limitations, citizen preferences, drainage and other engineering considerations.

• A "Complete Street" is defined as a street that is planned, designed, operated and maintained to provide safe mobility for all users, including bicyclists, pedestrians, transit vehicles, trucks and motorists. Complete streets may use a variety of physical features that are broadly described as "traffic calming" and often include curb extensions, roundabouts, reduced lane widths, speed humps (also called "speed tables"), raised crosswalks, landscaping and paving treatments.

• Center Medians are raised barriers that separate traffic flows, control access and reduce vehicle turning movements, all of which can improve safety if properly designed and constructed.

• Crosswalks are areas specifically designated for pedestrian crossings. They are usually at intersections but, where there are long distances between intersections, there may also be "mid-block crosswalks." There are a number of design considerations that can be considered to improve pedestrian safety in crosswalks.

"Piano Key" or "Zebra" striping, coloring, textures, or raised crosswalks all enhance visibility of crosswalks, as do flashing warning lights. Pedestrian refuges or pedestrian islands are protected areas between traffic lanes that separate pedestrian crossings into segments and allow pedestrians to wait safely for gaps in traffic before continuing the crossing.

• Curb Extensions (also known as bulb-outs) are features that extend from the sidewalk into the pavement at an intersection or at a mid-block crossing that reduce street width both physically and visually, thereby shortening pedestrian crossing distance at crosswalks and potentially helping to reduce traffic speeds. They provide increased visibility for pedestrians and motorists, and move parked vehicles away from street corners, improving visibility.

Curb extensions can be hard surfaced or landscaped or a mix of both. Design considerations for curb extensions include: Should be used whenever possible in pedestrian-oriented areas; should also be used for transit stops, where full-time, on-street parking exists; should only be used where there is a permanent parking lane; should not encroach into the bike lane; street furniture or plants on the curb extension should not impede motorist or pedestrian sightlines; should be designed with curb radii that can accommodate both large and small vehicles

• Road Diet (also known as "Lane Diet") is a narrowing of traffic lanes to reduce speeds. Motorists will generally slow down on narrower streets.

• Roundabouts are circular islands located at the convergence of two or more roadways that take the place of traffic signals or stop signs. In a roundabout, traffic circulates around the island, rather than through the intersection. Roundabouts can improve traffic flow by eliminating the need to come to a complete stop when the intersection is clear and/or reducing the delay if other vehicles are in the intersection. By allowing many vehicles, particularly large trucks, to proceed without coming to a complete stop, they reduce air pollution caused by starting and stopping movements.

Roundabouts can also be used for traffic calming because, even though relatively free flow is maintained, the center island deflects traffic, requiring that motorists slow before entering the roundabout. An important safety feature of roundabouts is that they reduce the severity of accidents because vehicles approach each other at acute angles, not at right angles or head-on. Another popular benefit of roundabouts is for use as a gateway to a neighborhood or a commercial area, often featuring landscaping or public art in the center island. Lastly, while roundabouts often require more space and are more costly to construct than conventional intersections, they eliminate the need for traffic lights that are expensive to construct and maintain.

• Street Furniture includes items such as benches, bike racks, lighting, planters, trash receptacles and banners which are physical features installed along sidewalks as part of the streetscape. These features can improve aesthetics and provide a sense of identity for a neighborhood or commercial area and enhance the functionality of the street for users other than motorists.

Street furniture can enhance safety and protection from vehicular traffic, as well as providing focal points for street activities. Street furnishings should be carefully placed so that they do not impede pedestrian or vehicular traffic or sight distance.

• Street Lighting refers to the illumination of a street's travel lanes or other portions of the street right-of-way such as sidewalk or other pedestrian areas. Street lighting enhances safety for all travelers, by illuminating hazards, curves and other travelers in the street. Lighting can also improve safety and security around buildings and in parking areas. Specially designed street lights can also enhance the visual attractiveness of an area.

Again this is an important opportunity to get involved and help to guide the eventual improvements to our Main Street corridor. For more information on the process and how you can participate, visit www.willitsmainstreetplan.com or contact City Hall at 459-4601.

Bans don't work

To the Editor:

In reference to the city council's meeting on March 21 in which they discussed a proposed ban on growing marijuana within city limits, I'm delighted they chose not to make a decision at this time.

Imagine if Prohibition were back in effect. Would our citizens who drink wine with dinner stop doing so? Of course not. A ban on alcohol such as existed in the early 1900s did not stop the use of alcohol. Banning alcohol during Prohibition simply drove sales underground and created a very profitable, dark business for gangsters and corrupt law enforcement officers. Bans don't work.

A ban on growing pot in town will make criminals out of our citizens. Don't we already have laws or guidelines for growing pot in town? If the laws don't work or are not being enforced, can't we enforce the existing laws or create new guidelines that work for everyone?

The City of Willits does not know how the freeway bypass, opening later this year, will affect the businesses in town. For me, it seems shortsighted to ban marijuana growing in town at the same time that our businesses may be adversely affected by less income from people who are bypassing our town. Many of our businesses are supported by those who grow marijuana. Surely the city council members are aware of this?

At a time when it is likely that the state of California will legalize marijuana growing and recreational use, banning it from the city seems backward. Couldn't we use tax monies from this "new" industry? We could even have a marijuana dispensary in town that could assist people with buying not only pot for recreational use but also for medicinal purposes.

Personally, I see a thriving Willits in the future with our black market pot culture coming out into the light. Prices will diminish; home invasions will end; we'll clean the environment; and our city coffers will grow with new tax income. For me, it's a win-win!

April Tweddell, Willits

At what price?

To the Editor:

Looks like the problem of what happens after the bypass has been solved. Just curious as to what price to our community? We were looking for a way to lure tourists here. Guess we can just advertise ourselves as the place to come buy your marijuana. We non-users will have to hope that our smelling abilities will be affected by bad colds, or on nice evenings find ourselves banned inside our homes. I guess this is similar to what is happening to free speech in this country, you can say what you want, as long as you agree with me....

What element of outsiders will be coming here? These pharmacies, I guess you call them, will be holding large amounts of money. Is our present law enforcement ready for the possible additional crime? Oh, that's right, with all these funds coming in, we can afford a larger police presence.

One can only hope if one decides that they don't want to live next door, or within smelling distance, they will be able to find a buyer for their home.

Looks like one more time it is easier to just give in then to stick to your principles. All I hear is, if we don't get our way we will sue you. That seems to be the way these days if someone doesn't get what they want, right or wrong, we will just take you to court. Problem is nine times out of 10, it is cheaper to give in than to fight them.

It is a shame this is the only way people seem to think we will bring dollars into our community. Years ago we were a viable and productive place to live. Then we were told that trees did not grow back and that spotted owls were more important than having people working. Now, these same trees that weren't supposed to grow back have, thicker than ever and without the proper care and ingress, they are just burning and with that causing bigger problems with the environment some are so worried about, by throwing more carcinogens into the atmosphere which these same people state that our driving cars fueled by fossil fuels is causing. I am confused, why is one, forest fires, not a problem, but cars are???

I digress. My issue, of which I have been told I should try smoking marijuana as I might like it, is that we will lose our wonderful little town that has meant a lot to me for a lot of years.

Sunday reception for contemporary Native American artist

There could be no better fit for the Mendocino County Museum's first contemporary Native American Art exhibit than the diverse and profound works of local artist, Pete Ethan Castro.

"Reservations Not Required - Returning Home" is currently on display in the "tall gallery" section of the museum, and will be running through July. The opening took place Saturday afternoon to a swelling, diverse crowd of locals as well as people from Lake County and Round Valley.

Castro, who is of Wailaki heritage, has shown all over California, including at the Oakland Museum of California, and he currently has a piece up titled "School Daze - Outside the Box" at Sacramento's California Museum.

How To Sudoku:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a Sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Gift and plaque honors the memory of Audrey Swofford

The City of Willits has put up a plaque – and some new awnings – at the Little League Loffing Field in memory of the late Audrey Swofford of Willits.

Swofford, who passed away on April 7, 2014, "spent much of her time at the ball fields watching the kids play ball and doing crossword puzzles," said City Clerk Cathy Moorhead, in a press release announcing the plaque. "So when her daughter made a contribution to the city, we decided that covered awnings for the bleachers would put the donation to great use. Once the plaque is up, I'm going to be forwarding a letter and photos to her daughter so she knows how her generous

"The Boss"

The Story: Melissa McCarthy is the super-wealthy, flamboyant, selfish (but ultimately lovable) "Boss" to Kristen Bell's competent, but lonely, single mother Girl Friday. McCarthy loses her wealth and is forced to move in with her former employee. Hilarity of various kinds ensues. Everyone is happy at the end.

My Thoughts: The movie is vulgar and funny. Some bits worked; some didn't. Film critics who get paid for their opinions did not like the movie.... Well, good for them. For you many moviegoers who love Melissa McCarthy and her bawdy humor, this movie is catnip for kittens; you will not be disappointed in the least. As for me, I laughed.

Parents: Slapstick humor, adultish sex jokes, lesbian jokes; in sum, humor that is not child-appropriate.

Herbs for Everyone

Workshop will teach kitchen medicine and first aid

In a warm and cozy living room under the shade of redwoods in Willits, a group of Mendocino County herbalists gathered to talk about and plan their workshop, "Herbal Medicine Making for Everyone: Kitchen Medicine and First Aid."

Donna d'Terra, director of Motherland Botanical Sanctuary and Herb School, and Wendy Reed, founder of The Caretaker's Garden in Boonville and director of the California Healing Institute, initiated an Herbal Teacher Training through the winter. They wanted to provide a way for interested herbalists to learn or hone their teaching skills. The "Herbal Medicine Making for Everyone" workshop is the culmination and graduation project of the teaching class. All of the eight women teaching a half-hour class have been herbalists in various parts of Mendocino County with businesses of their own.

Willits FFA members honored at Spring Regional Meeting

Willits High School seniors and active Future Farmers of America Willits Chapter members Sierra Skinner, 18, and Elizabeth Rountree, 17, received high honors on Saturday, April 2 during FFA's Spring Regional Meeting at Santa Rosa High School in Santa Rosa.

"The state degree is awarded by the State FFA Association," explained FFA advisor and WHS teacher Kelley Case.

"For a student to qualify for their state degree, they must be an active member in the FFA for at least 24 months; previously received their green hand and chapter degrees; earned and invested $1,000 in an agriculturally related project, or worked 300 hours; given a six-minute speech; served as an officer or as a committee chairman, or actively participated on a committee; demonstrated parliamentary procedure; have a satisfactory scholastic record; participated in chapter activities and activities above the chapter level; and have at least 25 hours of community service. The students start record books as freshmen enrolled in an ag class, and update them on a regular basis. They can receive their state degree their junior year if they have all the requirements."

Another FFA member, WHS junior Caitlyn Forrester, 17, was elected as a regional officer. Forrester had to fill out an application and go through an interview process before being slated.

"Once she was slated, she had to give a speech on why she should be elected to represent the Mendo-

There are four divisions of teams, T-Ball (ages 4 to 5), Machine Pitch (ages 6 to 8), Minors (ages 9 to 10) and Majors (ages 11 to 12). This year, around 275 kids from Willits and Laytonville are signed up to play.

In T-Ball, teams include Room to Bloom Bats, Brown's Corner Blue Wahoos, O'Kelley's Hardwood Flooring & Construction Dragons, Nor Crawl Mets, El Mexicano Owlz and Geiger's Long Valley Market Tin Caps. In Machine Pitch, teams include Weather Top Nursery Muck Dogs, Little Lake Auto Parts River Cats, Dr. Rued Dentistry Nuts and S&S Transmission and Spas Thunder. In Minors, teams include J.D. Redhouse Angels, Laytonville Chevron Athletics, Les Schwab Braves, Mobile Equine Veterinary Giants, Potter's Construction Marlins and Sparetime Supply Pirates. In Majors, teams include the Willits Power and Hardware A's, NOR CAL Redi-Mix Diamondbacks, Old Mission Pizza Giants, Garman Construction Padres and Red Fox Yankees.

The ceremonies this year will also feature the 1st annual Barbecue and Raffle, and tickets are available to purchase to support the league. Presale tickets are $12 each, and tickets will be $15 each the day of the event. The meal will include BBQ chicken, beans, salad and bread and will be served from 2 to 4 pm at the fields.

To purchase advance tickets, contact Roger Patereau at 972-4120.

Though many divisions are full, there are still some openings for kids interested in playing in the Majors, which are usually kids 11 to 12, but this year, some 10 year olds are also on the rosters. Those interested can find paperwork on the team's website: <http://wrlf.sply.com>, or can contact any of the officials of the league for more information. Willits Redwood Little League 2016 board members include Clint and Kim Jewell, Brad Lebert, Melissa Coughlin, Craig Dudley, Roger Patereau, Casey White and Sergio Avila.

To keep up with Willits Redwood Little League, "like" the league's Facebook page. Notices for tryouts next year will again be posted there, as well as sent out to schools.

All of the games are home games, taking place at the fields located on East Commercial Street. A complete calendar is available online at <http://wrlf.sply.com>, including 10 games set for opening day. Most Saturdays are filled with games, with start times ranging from 9 am through 5:30 pm.

weren't just assimilated. Some were outright kidnapped and forced into slavery.

"Pete's aunt Bev [age 83, who lives in Willits] told me a story of how the family would tattoo their children, so if they were kidnapped, they could find them later," Hamburg said.

For Pete Castro, born in Ukiah in 1961, those hurtful days of the past "are very fresh, as far as I'm concerned."

Nevertheless, "the underlying message behind the art," Castro told the crowd in his introduction to the show, "is to explain a lifestyle and to express some of my own healing processes."

Not all Castro's work is political in nature. There are several different animal portraits and humorous, tongue-in-cheek social commentary pieces, as well as aesthetically appealing abstract paintings.

Included with the art pieces are some of Castro's own writings: an autobiography, his experiences as a native dancer, and a short piece on Indian schools.

Castro credits the women in his life for nurturing him and raising him right.

"In the foreground were the women of my family: my mother, Juanita Carol Clark, my grandma Caroline Clark, my great-grandmother Mary L Clark, and various aunts in Round Valley. I was passed around a lot as a child."

He describes his minimalistic childhood home in idyllic fashion: "So it was there at the Big House, a home with no plumbing or electricity, a home lit by lantern light, with the woodstove for cooking and warmth — which was the center of our Covelo family life. Our chores included hauling in buckets of water from outside for bathing and cooking, plucking feathers from the quail, grouse and chickens, and learning how to hunt for food and how to fish for steelhead and salmon straight out of the mountain creeks."

Castro was baptized Catholic in Ukiah in the early 1970s and even served as an altar boy for a spell at the historic St. Mary's Church. He soon abandoned his altar boy days, once he was introduced to more indigenous ways like dance, living in the wilderness, and hunting.

According to Castro: "Nature taught me to be mindful and respect the elements. My elders taught me how to live and work with nature and helped me to build my confidence. From there, I began to listen to what nature had to say. The more I listen, the more it teaches me."

"And then, I began to listen to myself."

The Mendocino County Museum 400 East Commercial Street, is open Wednesdays through Sundays, 10 am to 4:30 pm. Visit <http://www.mendocinomuseum.org> or call 459-2736. Admission is $4, $1 for age 6-20; free to all on the first Wednesday of every month.

The beautiful plaque shows a "crossword angel" and reads: "In Memory of the Life of Audrey M. Swofford, August 14, 1929 - April 7, 2014. Come rain or shine, she will be right here sitting with all of us. City of Willits community will always remember you fondly."

Moorhead told Willits Weekly that Swofford's step-daughter, Dr. Aleen Swofford, from Knoxville, Tennessee, stopped at the City of Willits offices when she was here for the services and said she'd like to make a donation to the city to "use as you see fit." After talking it over, city staff decided that awnings for the ballfields — to provide shade from the hot sun for all the "grandparents" who like to come watch the kids' ballgames — would be just the right civic improvement to honor Swofford.

Willits High School varsity coach Rick Yadon noted several of the players did help the boys' team score points, including Layne Wright, Kyle Martinez, Justin Thom and Nick Arrington. Wright was able to score a triple and a double, and the other three "hit well," the coach said.

The Lady Wolverines coach, Meranda Powers, said pitcher and WHS junior Cheyenne Walters "pitched seven innings and had four strike-outs. She also only allowed three hits at the plate."

As there is no junior varsity girls team, all ages play together on one team. However, that includes only one freshman and one senior girl, with most of the team made up of juniors, Powers noted.

"The girls really just need to start working together as a team," explained Powers. "We had some errors in communication, and everyone was shocked at how crazy it got in the last inning. We kept it tied throughout the game, but just lost defense in the end."

Again, the same was true with the boys' team: Yadon said his players will be working on defensive drills which will hopefully help them avoid making the little mistakes that ended up losing it for them in the last inning.

"We have been leading the games, but have just had a few mistakes right at the end," said Yadon. "We are 3 and 0, and should be 0 and 3. We have a great team and are looking forward to playing better end innings as we move through the season."

Come cheer on the boys team at their next home game, held at Willits High School on Saturday, April 16 at 11 am. The varsity team will take on the El Molino Lions at the Willits High School fields, and the junior varsity team will play at the old ball fields on Commercial Street, also at 11 am.

Come cheer on the girls team at their next home game which will be held at Willits High School on Tuesday, April 19 at 4 pm against the Cloverdale.

Citizens for Fire Safe Forests led the petition drive to place Measure V on the ballot in November. If passed, Measure V would declare the practice of leaving dead trees standing in the forest for more than 90 days a public nuisance.

County resident and treasurer of Citizens for Fire Safe Forests Allen Cooperider, who filed the complaint, said he'd received an acknowledgement from the Enforcement Division of the FPPC that they have started an investigation into the allegations.

According to Cooperider, MRC reported the expenditures to the California Secretary of State's Office, but failed to report them locally. "MRC has a clear obligation to file disclosure statements at the local office, the same way we are required to do," Cooperider said. "It seems disingenuous of the company to go around talking about how transparent they are and then try to hide their expenditures from local people."

According to statements provided by Cooperider to the FPPC, MRC spent the money in the fall of 2015 to pay a consultancy group, and to place ads opposing what it then termed the "Tan Oak Initiative" in several local newspapers.

At the time MRC spent the money, the tan oak initiative had not qualified to be placed on the June ballot. It was declared to have qualified in late February, and was given the title of Measure V.

John Anderson, director of forest policy for MRC, confirmed the FPPC has contacted the company. "We were contacted by the FPPC. We responded, and we are awaiting a response back from the FPPC," Anderson said.

Anderson also explained why he believes the company failed to report the expenses to the Mendocino County Elections Office.

"I would imagine that was because the initiative petition being circulated had not yet qualified as a ballot measure," Anderson said. "So we went ahead and reported those costs to the secretary of state out of an abundance of caution."

"We rely on attorneys and experts to do that work for us," he added.

Cooperider also pointed out MRC has skirted FPPC rules in the past, and has been fined by the FPPC at least one time before. In January 2015, the lumber company was fined $8,319 by the FPPC for failing to file eight "major donor committee" statements, and a failure to file five "late contribution reports," spanning the period from 2010 to 2014. During that time, MRC made donations to 141 candidates and organizations totaling $175,241, which it failed to report.

Anderson had an explanation for that, as well. "On that one, it was something that had been going on for a number of years," he said. "It was an internal paperwork thing that we just weren't aware of. Then one of our people found it and said, 'I think we have a problem here.' So we looked into it and yes, we had a problem. We weren't reporting things the way we should have. So we self-reported that to the FPPC. They fined us, and we paid the fine."

"It's a very complex set of laws, as you can imagine. But we think we're on top of it now," Anderson said.

an effort by a third group to open a 72-hour locked mental health facility, and the possibility of utilizing the old Howard Hospital in Willits, which remains vacant and for sale.

According to mental health insiders, progress on three of these tracks is at such a sensitive stage that people can't say much about it.

Ace Barash, director of inpatient care at the new Howard Hospital, said in a recent phone conversation with Willits Weekly that Redwood Quality Management Company is actively pursuing establishing a crisis/residential mental health facility in Mendocino County. RQMC is an umbrella company over Redwood Community Services, a Ukiah company that for decades has provided mental health services for children here, and which was only last month awarded a contract to begin to provide mental health services for adults.

At the same time, another group Barash is associated with is actively working on siting a locked mental health facility somewhere in the county.

Barash said progress on both the crisis/residential track and the locked facility track are at highly sensitive stages and that he could not divulge further details.

"There are a lot of things going on right now," he said. "In a few weeks it will be a lot more clear."

Margie Handley, president of the Howard Hospital Foundation, said much the same thing when asked for details about progress on siting a mental health facility at the old hospital building.

"I can't say anything right now," Handley said. "There are lots of balls in the air, but no one knows where or when they are going to come down. I can tell you that I hope to know a lot more in 60 days. I'd say by then we'll know which direction it's going to go."

Handley mentioned the old Howard Hospital has been offered for sale at a price of $2.1 million. "For a 38,000-square-foot facility that occupies an entire block in and county residents need use this fire season to prevent unwanted fires.

Most weeds are ugly and detract from the appearance of individual properties and our neighborhoods. Uncontrolled weeds create a fire hazard, endangering property and surrounding neighborhoods. Uncontrolled weeds provide cover for transients and can provide an unwanted food source for insects and rodents. Additionally, weed abatement is a yearlong battle, requiring continuing efforts to keep vegetation under control.

The Willits Municipal Code and the California Fire Code prohibit any excessive intrusion of weeds on private or public property. Tall weeds are considered a nuisance, and may present a fire hazard. In the event that overgrown weeds are found to constitute a fire hazard, the Fire Department will provide a notice of violation in order to inform property owners/managers of the necessity to remove the weeds and combustible fuels from their properties.

The notice is a courtesy reminder sent by the fire department to owners of parcels within the City of Willits reminding them that they are responsible for weed abatement on their properties by June 17, 2016.

Starting on May 2, 2016, staff from the Willits Fire Department, working with Willits Code Enforcement, will actively begin conducting inspections on all affected properties within the City of Willits. Properties not in compliance with the City Municipal Code and the California Fire Code will be issued an official notice of violation for compliance. If a property owner or manager receives a notice from the Little Lake Fire Protection District, they are encouraged to act on it promptly.

If by June 30, 2016 the lot or property is still not in compliance, property owners will receive a citation, a hired contractor will abate the problem, and the property owner will be billed for abatement costs.

If the public has a concern about fire-prone grass and brush near their home, or for a list of abatement contractors, they should contact the Little Lake Fire Protection District at 459-6271. Someone will investigate whether the brush or grass removal is necessary or possible. The LLFDP appreciates the community's assistance in building defensible spaces between their homes and any wildland areas.

If you live in the state responsibility area, SRA, you are responsible for ensuring that your property is in compliance with California's building and fire codes that call for homeowners to take proactive steps to protect their property from a wildfire.

California law requires that homeowners

the center of Willits, that's a steal," Handley said.

Barash said investigations into the feasibility of using the old Howard Hospital, located on Main Street, have become increasingly complex. "We are going to have to go to OSHPD," Barash said, referring to the Office of Statewide Health Planning and Development, based in Sacramento. "And so, before we do that, we are trying to get as much information as we can so we can ask OSHPD the right questions and give them the right answers, if we can."

"It's become much more complex than anyone thought."

Barash suggested the crisis/residential facility RQMC is working on may be a temporary facility that will serve until a better facility can be secured. "We need a crisis/residential facility as soon as possible," Barash said. "Even if the half-cent sales tax initiative passes, it's going to be years before such a facility can be built. We're trying to cover the bases, and have something in place as soon as possible."

"We're just trying to be as expeditious as possible," he said.

David Byrnes, information officer with OSHPD, told Willits Weekly that, while there are no requirements that Howard Hospital be retrofitted for earthquake safety if it were to be used as a crisis/residential facility or a locked mental health facility, owners may wish to do so as a safety precaution.

"Even though there are no requirements for structural retrofit of these buildings, they are after all SPC-1 buildings, that is, at risk of possible collapse in a strong earthquake," Byrnes said. "Some SPC-1 buildings may not be structurally suitable for housing patients of any kind."

The hospital may want to investigate the structural safety of the old building in terms of suitability for the intended end use before doing any kind of conversion, Byrnes said.

Sheriff Allman told Willits Weekly Wednesday that his group had just received the final version of the initiative petition from the county counsel's office and will start to circulate the petitions this week.

in SRA clear out flammable materials such as brush or vegetation around their buildings to 100 feet (or the property line) to create a defensible space buffer. This helps halt the progress of an approaching wildfire and keeps firefighters safe while they defend your home. The first 35 feet around your structure is the most important zone, where the property owner can create horizontal and vertical fuel breaks to give their home a chance for survival.

The law also requires new homes to be constructed with fire-resistant materials. By building your home with materials like fire-resistant roofing, enclosed eaves and dual-paned windows, you are hardening your home and giving it a fighting chance to survive a wildfire.

By following the law, you will help prevent buildings from being ignited by flying embers, which can travel as much as a mile away from a wildfire. You also provide that buffer space that gives firefighters a zone of safety as they work to protect properties.

What works in the SRA will also work for property owners and managers within the local responsibility area, LRA, of Mendocino County. Be proactive in your preparations against fire. Remove combustibles from around all standing structures. Give your structure a chance against fire.

Don't be dependent on open burning to get rid of combustible vegetative materials. Mulch vegetation or recycle it at Solid Waste of Willits. As a reminder, all large pile burn permits expire on April 30, 2016. All small burn pile (dooryard) permits will expire on May 30, 2016. It is always possible the burn season may end even earlier, depending on weather conditions.

Plan your burning carefully and consider your current situation. Ensure that a responsible person is in attendance until the fire is dead out and cold. If a fire escapes your property, you could face civil and legal charges, including the cost of fire suppression.

All property owners, managers, and citizens are asked to be cautious in their daily activities. Even the action of trying to create a buffer could create the spark or heat source necessary to start a fire. Use caution with smoking materials, and please use common sense with any fire or open flame. Remember even something as harmless as a small warming fire has a great potential to cause damage to our neighborhoods and destruction of our forest lands.

Thank you for keeping your neighborhoods and your homes safe from accidental fires. Working together, we can keep our city and county a safe place to work and live.

'Where Does Our Money Go?'

"For every dollar that is spent locally, 52 cents stays in the community," Greta Kanne, owner of The Book Juggler, declared at last week's forum "Where Does Our Money Go?," where she was a panelist.

Co-sponsored by Willits Economic Localization, or WELL, and the Willits Chamber of Commerce, the town hall-style forum was organized, in part, as preparation for the opening of the Willits bypass, which is expected to take place by the end of this year.

Held in council chambers at Willits City Hall, the event featured three other panelists: Richard Willoughby, retired president of two local banks; Alan Falleri, retired community development director; and Lisa Epstein, president of the Willits Chamber of Commerce.

Emily Rose Smith, a Willits native who recently returned after earning a master's degree in business administration, acted as moderator.

Falleri began the proceedings with some lightheartedness: "I couldn't decide which T-shirt I should wear for this panel discussion, my 'Build Community' T-shirt, or my 'Think Local, Buy Local, Be Local' T-shirt." Pulling up one of the shirts to show the audience, he said, "So I wore both."

From there, things got a little more serious as Falleri summarized the history of the lumber industry in Mendocino County, how after World War II, the small local mills were bought up by giant, outside industry.

"I saw people come in from out of state, big corporations, beholden to their shareholders," Falleri stated. "They came in, and they did not have a good sense of the community, and they didn't have a good sense of how our timber grows, how our land forms. They made a lot of money and supplied a lot of jobs, and now they're gone and our resources are pretty well depleted."

As he continued, it became clear Falleri was warning Willits not to look to be rescued from the consequences of the bypass through luring big box stores into the city, though he didn't completely rule out the idea of carefully selected bigger businesses.

Falleri discussed his experience working with a group called Business Alliance for Local Living Economies, or BALLE.

"BALLE has a wealth of information," Falleri said. "They have forms, examples and templates for all kinds of things you can do locally. One of those was the Hometown Festival, which promotes small independent retail."

The biggest threat to independent retail today was identified by the panel as being online shopping.

"Our money goes to four places," said Epstein. "It goes in town, it goes to Ukiah, it goes out of town, and it goes online."

Willoughby identified the overall change in consumer marketing towards millennials as a big reason for continued growth in the online world.

"My whole adult life, baby boomers have been the major focus of marketing," Willoughby said, "because they represented the largest portion of our population. Millennials have overtaken them; they're 18 to 34 now, and these kids are not going to go offline."

In order to compete with giant online retailers, Epstein and others stated it is important to establish a strong online presence. The Chamber of Commerce is collecting all the information it can for local businesses, she explained.

"Businesses need to understand that they should be involved with the chamber," Epstein said. "They have to buy into the premise that we're representing them, and we're going to do everything we can to make this town a better place."

Kanne discussed the consequences of online shopping versus the benefits of buying local.

"For every $10 million in sales that Amazon makes, they employ 14 people," Kanne said. "If you look at independent retailers in America, they employ 47 people for every $10 million in revenue. If you look at small independent stores that aren't chain-owned, it's 57 people for every $10 million in sales. When you're supporting independent stores, you're actually supporting more jobs in Willits, in the state and in the country."

Jed Diamond, local author and psychotherapist, remarked about how, even if a local store doesn't carry a certain item you may want, they more often than not can order it. That way, the money stays local, instead of being sucked out into the internet ether.

Diamond also explained how his business increased, once he established an online presence.

"Now 80 percent of my income comes to me online," Diamond said. "A lot of money is now coming in to us as a community, because I have an online presence. Instead of a constituency of 5,000 Willits people, I get people who buy my services all over the world. Then some of them want to see me in person, so they come to Willits; I put them up at local hotels, I give them the tour of our unique local stores."

Another tip for expanding an online presence for local businesses, championed by both Kanne and Epstein, is to write positive reviews on sites such as Yelp. When travelers are driving on Highway 101 and are considering stopping in Willits for food and shopping, they will undoubtedly google what is available, the argument goes. The more positive reviews retailers receive online, the more likely people will take the exit and explore what Willits has to offer.

A list of ways local consumers can help Willits retailers includes: Write reviews on sites such as Yelp and Angie's List; find local businesses on Facebook and "like" and "follow" their pages and recommend those businesses on your page; for businesses whose online presence is minimal or nonexistent, request the owners get on board with the digital age, as it will only improve their business.

"What it comes down to is: Your dollar is your vote," Kanne told the group. "The way that you spend your money is a vote for the community you want to live in. Do you want a community where people are looking out for one another and working together to create a place they all enjoy being in, or do you want to save your extra $3 because you can get it online? These are choices we have to make."

Wonderful Turtle

Turtle is a 1.5-year-old male mixed-breed dog who currently weighs 51 pounds. Turtle is a joy to be around. Give him a tennis ball, and he will entertain himself, and you, for hours! Oddly enough, he seems unsure of stuffed animals! He is super friendly and happy and likes everyone he meets, human or canine. Turtle is wonderful company, whether out for a walk or cuddled on the couch. And he's a gorgeous boy to boot.

The Ukiah Animal Shelter is located at 298 Plant Road in Ukiah, and our adoption hours are Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 10 am to 4 pm and Wednesday from 10 am to 6 pm. Willits 4-H Members receive sponsored sheep ensembles for fair season

The sheep owned by members of the Willits 4-H will look extra cohesive this fair season, as the flock will all be donning the same frocks this year.

Sheep will wear their new embroidered mesh fly-sheets that aim to keep sheep clean and comfortable and ready for the show ring. A few will also wear some festive pink tie-dye spandex Slinkies underneath their donated sheets, too.

J.D. Redhouse, Willits Frontier Days and T&T Towing all made this possible by sponsoring the embroidered sheets for the sheep group. There are also matching feed tubs and water buckets donated for the pens by Chris and Jeff Ceresa and Debbie and Bob Baechtel.

Come see the sheep along with all the other animals at this year's Redwood Empire Fair, August 4 through 7 at the Ukiah Fairgrounds.

Nikos' 1st anniversary

Congratulations, or "Συγχαρητήρια" in Greek, to Nikos Gyro Shop on their first anniversary on Friday, April 8. Owners Adrian and Evelyn Fisher celebrated their first year in business by giving a free gyro to every customer who visited their Main Street shop that day — until they ran out after giving away almost 300 gyros! "Thank you Willits for making our anniversary amazing," Evelyn Fisher said on Facebook. "We thank each and every person who has supported our family business this past year. We look forward to many more gyro-filled years ahead! Opa!" Check out "Nikos Gyro Shop" on Facebook or call 456-9293.

The events will kick off with a Walking Assessment of the area on Monday, April 18 (5 to 6 pm), beginning and ending at the old Rexall building. During the walkabout, participants will review conditions along portions of Main Street, and help determine where and how improvements can be made.

After the assessment, North Coast Opportunities' Food Hub and Food Prep projects will be hosting a Local Food Culinary Showcase at the old Rexall building (6 to 6:30 pm). Some of the best chefs from Willits restaurants, small businesses and catering companies will be in attendance. Serving up samples of fresh, inspired dishes featuring locally grown and raised vegetables, fruits, meats, cheeses and grains will be Adam's Restaurant, Nikos Gyros, Brickhouse Coffee, NCO Healthy Harvest Project, Zocalo Collective, Good Earth Kitchen, Mendocino Fermented Foods, J.D. Redhouse and Kemmy's Pies. Participants will see ingredients from farmers market favorites Green Uprising Farm, Covelo Organics, Fortunate Farm, Tequio Community Farm, Cinnamon Bear Farm, Mendocino Grain Project, Ford Ranch Beef and Shamrock Artisan Chevre.

Immediately following the culinary showcase, a Community Workshop (6:30 to 8:30 pm) will engage participants, as they become "community designers" and craft their own solutions to design issues on a 28-foot-long map of the entire Main Street corridor. Input received at the workshop will be formative to the Willits Main Street Corridor Enhancement Plan.

On Wednesday and Thursday, April 20 and April 21 (5:30 to 6:30 pm), community members are encouraged to drop by the Open House at the old Rexall building, to look at the designs in progress and talk with the design team. The community input from these sessions will be incorporated into the final plan.

In celebration of Earth Day, on Friday, April 22, Walk & Bike Mendocino will lead a Community Bike Ride (5 to 5:30 pm) prior to the presentation of the preliminary Main Street designs (5:30 to 7 pm). An array of free appetizers will be provided by Scoops Catering.

This planning process seeks to have as many of these improvements as possible included in the Caltrans construction project along the portion of Highway 101 to be relinquished to the city. Construction is currently scheduled to begin in late 2017. The remaining improvements — including those improvements to the portion of South Main Street that will still be Highway 20 — are an important part of the long-term vision for Main Street and will be included in the resulting Willits Main Street Corridor Enhancement Plan. The plan will address safety, walking, biking, landscaping, lighting, street beautification, natural drainage and economic development along the corridor. It will also include recommendations for phased implementation and identification of potential funding sources.

More information about the Planning Fair may be found at www.willitsmainstreetplan.com, or by calling City Hall at 459-4601.

member Bill Barksdale calling the hotel a blight. Others echoed his judgment.

City Planner Dusty Dooley, tasked with the decision to go ahead with eminent domain, Madrigal said. "It's litigious; it is not a popular thing for government to take over people's property. It doesn't mean it wouldn't work here, but maybe we could try an assessment structure first."

Greta Kanne, owner of The Book Juggler, told the committee how every time her brother, a real estate attorney in Palo Alto, comes to Willits for a visit, "he looks at a particular building and says 'I don't know why your city doesn't enact eminent domain.' Every time he comes, he says that."

Kanne said the Van Hotel isn't the only problem.

"There are some buildings where the windows are broken and there's plants growing into the buildings, and there's trash around the fence lines," she said. "I think that's when you have to say, 'here's the standard, these owners aren't meeting it, so we have to assess some kind of penalty.'"

Barksdale suggested altering the zoning codes as a possible alternative to the eminent domain option.

"We could identify a certain area [and classify it as] an 'enterprise zone,'" Barksdale said. "Because it's the core of the economic engine we're trying to develop, there are certain things we're expecting properties to comply with in that zone."

County Supervisor and Revit-ED committee member Tom Woodhouse summed up the concerns of those at the meeting most accurately.

"It's time for the city to stand up," Woodhouse proclaimed. "If the bypass is going to weaken us, we should start doing something now."

Woodhouse suggested picking the four worst properties in town and bringing them before the city council so the council could begin a study to condemn those buildings.

"We're past the reward incentives and the facade painting and putting up awnings," Woodhouse said. "We're in a different struggle financially, so we have to respond at a higher degree of courage, I think. Doing nothing hasn't worked in the last 10 years."

The Revit-ED committee has no authority to act, but is charged with making specific recommendations to the city council. By its next meeting on July 12, the committee is planning to put together such recommendations, not only regarding vacancy abatement, but also Willits' "sphere of influence" and highway signage in anticipation of the bypass opening.

Those items were also discussed during Tuesday's meeting; Willits Weekly will report on those issues in a future edition.

available. Directors also passed a $50 per year standby sewer charge for each parcel of land within the district capable of receiving sewer service without requiring a mainline extension, whether that service is used or not.

The charge has not increased since 1996, district manager Denise Rose told directors.

No one attended the public hearings scheduled to debate the fees.

The district has approximately 1,155 water and 1,425 sewer hookups.

In other action taken Tuesday, directors renewed their declaration of a local drought emergency, maintaining a 250-gallon per day water cap for Brooktrails residents.

Lake Emily and Lake Ida Rose, which provide Brooktrails' drinking water, remain full and stable due to residents' "diligent conservation efforts," Rose told directors, but both the state and Mendocino County remain "in the midst of a long-term drought," and California's water boards have renewed emergency water restrictions for 2016.

Those restrictions hamper Brooktrails' ability to impound water flowing from Willits Creek into the district's reservoirs, Rose explained.

"As a junior water rights permittee," Rose said, "the township may only impound water when the water board lifts curtailment provisions during certain rain events," as it did this winter. The township's permit also requires suggesting that going for eminent domain should be a last resort.

"The city council would have to make the decision to go ahead with eminent domain," Madrigal said. "It's litigious; it is not a popular thing for government to take over people's property. It doesn't mean it wouldn't work here, but maybe we could try an assessment structure first."

Department Chief Carl Magann — had discussed and assessed the prospects of the potential measure and supporting campaign before Tuesday's meeting, and unanimously decided the timing was wrong.

"This is going to be a very contentious election cycle," said Herman, "and it just didn't feel like the time for us to be on the ballot with a tax measure. So we decided we'd rather wait until we're not competing with other tax measures."

The board approved the ad hoc committee's decision, and agreed to reconsider a tax measure after the next election. They will also move forward with trying to raise money for the firehouse on their own, including a fundraiser on June 25.

Mendocino County Supervisor Tom Woodhouse, in attendance at the meeting, voiced his support for LLFD getting a share of Proposition 172 funding. An ad hoc committee for the Mendocino County Board of Supervisors also endorsed that position last month.

Prop. 172 was a state measure passed in 1993 which raised the sales tax by one half-cent to fund "public safety" programs. This was originally thought to include fire departments, but they were largely cut out of funding throughout the state, including Mendocino County. LLFD and other local departments have been fighting for a share of Prop. 172 funds in recent years.

Woodhouse said he wasn't sure how much the department would get, or how quickly they would get it, but thought it was just a matter of time before the district would get something allocated from 172. He also felt strongly that they deserved it.

"Everybody on the board feels like we'll never have enough money to do everything," he said, "but we have to [help] these core beliefs. And when you call 911, you expect the fire or police [department] to be there. If they're not, everything else you're fighting about doesn't matter."

He also commended Magann and the LLFD on the way they conducted themselves at the board meetings regarding Prop 172.

"When you guys come to the board, you're the most polite, thoughtful people," he said, "You're talking about other people's needs. You guys are serving, and it really makes a difference. We all want to stay open to that kind of attitude. It may not seem like it, but the kind approach does pay off in the long run."

Woodhouse came to the meeting to inquire about getting LLFD help to look into the possibility of condemning certain properties in town he says are "beyond repair." They agreed to research the issue over the next month and place it on the agenda for their next meeting.

Also at the meeting, LLFD Training Chief Chris Wilkes presented an update on firefighter training, including the success of the burn training day hosted by LLFD last Saturday. There, 24 firefighters from around the county, including three from LLFD, came to complete their training in the three-month intensive Mendocino County Fire Chiefs Academy. It culminated with a live burn simulation drill with propane-produced flames in a specially designed trailer brought by the Kelseyville department. Students went through several training stations throughout the daylong event.

Wilkes, who coordinated the event, said: "It went very well — no conflicts, no problems."

He was commended and thanked by Magann and board member Tony Madrigal, who were both involved in the burn training day as well, and agreed that everything went really smoothly.

"You did a great job of putting everything together and I really want to thank you, and the rest of the board thanks you," said Madrigal.

Wilkes also discussed new training techniques the firefighting team has been working on, including new methods for extracting people from crashed vehicles due to changing types of construction, such as hybrid and electric engines, and ultra-high-strength steel.

"Things are changing," he said, "and we're being dynamic and trying to move forward with those changes, and become more efficient."

He and the LLFD also were involved in an "active shooter drill" at Mendocino College recently, which was run by the Mendocino County Sheriff's Office. He said the sheriff's office did "a really, really good job of putting it on. We were lucky enough to be a part of it."

Several police departments, as well as paramedic units, also took part in the drill, including the Willits Police Department. Wilkes noted these kinds of drills are becoming very common in cities and towns around the nation.

Robert McKenzie was sworn in at the meeting as an official LLFD firefighter after finishing his required 12-month probationary period working with the district. He previously worked as a company officer and trained operator with the Brooktrails Fire Department.
