Another bypass event being planned right now is a farm-to-table supper “celebrating the opening of the Willits bypass and our own Main Street homecoming,” hosted by the Willits Chamber of Commerce. The “Supper on the Bypass” is set for Saturday afternoon, October 29, and will be held on the still-to-be-opened bypass itself.

The event committee is still working out details, but the chamber plans to sell 200 tickets at $100 each. “We haven’t really officially announced the supper,” said Lynn Kennelly, executive director of the Willits Chamber of Commerce, “but we’ve already received 50 reservations, as people have found out via word of mouth. Word travels fast in Willits!”

This once-in-a-lifetime event will feature walk-around appetizers by local farmers and chefs, with Mendocino County wine from vintners located along historic Highway 101 and Mendocino County beer and hard cider. The menu for the multicourse sit-down dinner is being created by world-renowned chef John Ash, using recipes from his new book, “Cooking Wild” using local farm fresh produce, which will be served on two 100+ foot-long farm tables set up on the bypass.

Kennelly said the chamber was discussing the possibility of organizing a farm to table dinner to commemorate the opening of the bypass, and chamber President Lisa Epstein said “let’s do it on the bypass!” and everybody laughed and thought it was a great idea, and with the help of the committee members, they were able to make it happen.

“This will be a new era in Willits history,” Kennelly said. “We’re looking forward to what opportunities we’ll have as a community. It’s our town, our future that we’re going to be celebrating. How are we going to make this a strong community, a destination – and not only for tourists, but for manufacturing? That’s what this is about: What we’re going to be here, after the bypass opens.”

The chamber is taking reservations for the October 29 dinner at 459-7910.

Supes cool to Woodhouse call for tax-sharing ad hoc

A request by Third District Supervisor Tom Woodhouse to create an ad hoc committee to study the potential for a tax-sharing agreement between the county and the City of Willits was met with skepticism at the Tuesday, August 2, board meeting.

Reporter

However, supervisors did agree to discuss the matter again, and to hear Woodhouse present the relevant facts in the matter.

Second District Supervisor John McCowen said, “Not only may it be premature, it may be the wrong approach to address whatever problems may exist.”

McCowen, who sat for several years on a tax-sharing committee made up of representatives of the county and City of Ukiah, added, “I don’t see the need, or even the conditions, that would cause us to have a tax-sharing ad hoc at this time.”

In the case of Ukiah, the conditions sufficient to warrant formal discussions were: 1.) significant industrial and commercial development in unincorporated areas north of the City of Ukiah; 2.) the ability of the City of Ukiah to provide services such as water, sewer, fire and police protection to that area; 3.) the desire on the part of the City of Ukiah to annex that area into its city limits; and 4.) the willingness on the part of the county to agree to that potential annexation in exchange for a percentage of the tax revenues.

The negotiations were unsuccessful, and no tax-sharing agreement exists between Ukiah and the county. The area

Westerberg, who moved from Michigan, where he worked as a school district superintendent for seven years, took over the duties for the WUSD in July.

Though this was his first public meeting, Westerberg and the board did meet for a retreat on July 21, and Westerberg said he was feeling very positive about the possibilities for the future.

“The leadership team and I met, they went through the improvement plan I gave the board at our retreat and I shared it with them – what’s on my agenda, what I see us needing to do. I think there’s a lot of ambitious stuff there, but everybody I’ve met has been very good, very supportive, and I think we’re going to make good progress.”

The WTA agreement was ratified on a 3-2 vote. However, some board members expressed disappointment there was no raise for starting teachers’ salaries in the contract.

Trustee Alex Bowlds was particularly vocal about his displeasure with the lack of a pay raise, which he felt puts the WUSD at a disadvantage when seeking to hire new teachers.

“I’m deeply disappointed the WTA negotiators did not take steps to improve beginning teacher salaries,” he said. “I think beginning teacher salaries are ridiculously low. It’s been very clear this is a very serious issue for our district. I think it’s serious not only to the board, but serious for the WTA. It sends the wrong message. I think it is a mistake to ignore this.”

He added that while the district doesn’t really have the money to give starting pay raises because it’s operating at a deficit, the pay schedule could be restructured so any is still within the unincorporated part of the county.

Supervisor Carre Brown also seemed cool to the idea. “I’d like more information. Where are the city limits? Where is the sphere of influence? I just don’t see this as the perfect time to move forward there.”

Nevertheless, the board was willing to hear a more detailed presentation from the City of Willits and from Woodhouse. That presentation has yet to be scheduled.

Willits City Manager Adrienne Moore told Willits Weekly the proposal to explore the potential establishment of a tax-sharing agreement came at the suggestion of the county’s Local Agency Formation Commission in response to City of Willits’ inquiries about the possible annexation of certain neighborhoods, such as Della Avenue, for which Willits already provides water and sewer but which do not lie within the city limits.

“We’d like to have something in place that would capture areas where we are already providing water, sewer and police services, places like Della Avenue,” Moore said.

For his part, Woodhouse tied it directly to the bypass and to development in those areas. “I am trying to come up with a compromise that will give us the growth we all need.

“The growth is going to come there,” Woodhouse said. “We have to prepare for it.”

Speaking of Willits’ political leaders, Woodhouse said: “They are very motivated. Once the bypass comes, they are in a tailspin. They are already are in one.”

teacher’s overall pay during their tenure would not be reduced.

Board President Chris Neary voted for the agreement, but echoed some of Bowld’s sentiments.

“I think Alex has spoken for all of us in stating that,” Neary said. “I do view this as a one-year contract. I am excited that we’re getting contracts settled before the school year starts, but I would certainly support this being the No. 1 focus – whether it’s through bargaining strategy or alternative strategies to get this fixed – so that next year when we’re in the market, we’re competitive. I’m prepared to support the master agreement with that reservation.”

Westerburg said he would guess WUSD lost at least seven qualified applicants to better offers from other districts during the hiring process. He said he had several ideas about how to approach the problem in the future “that don’t include ratcheting everything up.”

The CSEA agreement passed unanimously, although there were similar concerns expressed in discussion before the vote about how best to balance budget constraints with the need to attract quality workers.

Laura Sleeper, the WUSD human resources director, said the district was basically fully staffed and ready to go for the year. There were only openings left for a couple winter high school coaching spots (for volleyball and boys basketball), and for a school psychologist.

Neary remarked it was rare for the district to have the staffing nearly completed with so much time left before the school year starts. “It seems like the last several years, right before school we were still scrounging around to fill positions. It is impressive that we’ve done it a month ahead of time.”

“I’ve had a lot of help,” said Sleeper. “The administration staff has worked all summer.”

Other concerns addressed by Westerburg during the meeting included repairing district athletic facilities, and finding additional funding for athlet-

Cleaning up
Sherwood Road

To the Editor:

I am writing for the first time in hopes of bringing awareness to the issue of excessive trash along Sherwood Road. This trash has been accumulating all summer, with no apparent end in sight. In an effort to find out who may be responsible for maintenance and clean-up of this road, I have called the City of Willits, Brooktrails Township, and the County of Mendocino.

After calling the City of Willits, I was informed that Brooktrails Township is responsible for maintaining this road. An official from the Brooktrails office informed me that this is not the case, and that it was the responsibility of the county. An official from the county informed me that this is also not accurate, and that they are not responsible for its maintenance either. I was then directed back to Brooktrails.

In my quest for information, I have also contacted local political officials, and spoken with many local residents. Although all expressed that they also had concerns related to this issue, I was not able to obtain any concrete information regarding responsibility for the maintenance of this road. It seems that there is not currently any entity tasked with keeping this road clean, with the exception of occasional cleaning of short stretches by volunteers.

The situation has devolved to the point that there are multiple storm drains blocked, and at the time of this letter being written, an entire fender on the side of the road near town. I am concerned about the impact of the trash on wildlife and property values. I have stopped, on occasion, and cleaned some of the most unsightly debris. However, this road does not have any real shoulders to park in and speeding is common, making this dangerous.

It is my opinion that the community needs to come together to discuss realistic, efficient, long-term solutions to this problem. It is beyond the scope of what a handful of volunteers can safely and effectively accomplish on an ongoing basis. I am not sure what the next step is, or how to organize this meeting of the minds; but am very open to suggestions or additional information regarding this issue.

I love living in this beautiful place, and I just want to keep it that way. It is my hope that this letter will motivate someone in a position to address this problem to take action. I am happy to help in any way that is within my power. Thank you very much.

How To
Sudoku:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a Sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Willits Frontier Twirlers looks to attract new dancers

Last Friday evening at the Willits Center for the Arts, the Willits Frontier Twirlers held what is called in the world of square dance lingo, "a one-night stand," a party where people who are assumed to know nothing about square dancing learn just enough calls to dance for one night.

Veteran caller Lawrence Johnstone led the group of 12 couples in the basic square dance moves, even though most of the dancers present were fairly experienced, having been members of the Twirlers for many years.

The reason for holding the event as a beginners' night was to attract new faces, as the group will be holding weekly lessons in an effort to expand membership.

Johnstone, who lives in Ukiah, is one of about 22 professional callers in Northern California and he's been calling for 22 years. He calls for the Redwood Coasters in Fort Bragg, the Ukiah Promenaders, and the Singles and Pairs square dancing club in Santa Rosa.

"The caller is the one who controls the dance and tells everyone what to do," Johnstone explained, adding that it's a much more difficult job than it appears. "I've been to two caller schools."

"I originally got into it because my parents square-danced and they wanted us to do it together as a family activity," Johnstone said. "It's a great family activity."

Johnstone explained that although square dancing as it is performed today originated in the United States in the late 1800s: "It's like the English language; it grabs bits and pieces from all over. There's French terminology [for the calls], some forms of English country dancing involved with the moves, Scottish influences, and much more."

Emmy Good, a long-time member of the Willits Frontier Twirlers, when asked what she gets most out of square dancing, laughed and said: "It gets you high. Your brain loves that kind of thing, because it's geometry in motion. Watching square dancing from above has got to be the best thing, because all of the geometric [patterning]."

Building results for north county exhibitors

Entrants from all over the county are welcome to showcase their skills by entering exhibits into any of the Redwood Empire Fair's department buildings for the public to enjoy. The Home Arts building displays entries like baked goods, tote paintings, collections, sewing and quilting projects, canned goods and more; the Fine Arts building showcases photography, paintings, drawings, jewelry, wood crafts and other quality art projects; and the Junior building is a main hub for all the youth 4-H, Future Farmer of America and independent exhibitors' entries, including everything from photography, table settings, fly tying, poetry, educational exhibits and much more.

The Floriculture building merged with the Horticulture and Agriculture building this year, and all the home-raised produce, herbs, flowers, fruits and veggies were all there on display. Cut flowers and floral arrangements also graced the walls. Outside, the gardens were displayed with planted flowers and decorations in vignettes for the public to enjoy.

Results for north county residents (Willits, Laytonville and Covelo) are listed below.

After breaking the group into squares of four couples each, Johnstone explained the basic calls and their accompanying moves. "The basic moves: Circle left, circle right, allemande left," said Johnstone. "Allemande comes from a French term that means 'by the hand.' You join left forearms with somebody and walk around in a circle."

As a modern square dance caller, rather than a traditionalist, Johnstone's music isn't limited to the basic country and western beats, but includes a wide range of genres including contemporary rock and roll.

"I take a piece of music that has a good beat, not necessarily a lot of melody to it, and I throw in square dance moves off the top of my head and maneuver the dancers around the room in geometric patterns."

Square dancing is an international phenomenon, with a universal language and standards practiced by a variety of cultures.

"If you were to go to a dance in Germany, they use the same calls," said Good. "Every once in a while, we'd have groups from around the world, and they'd come dance with us. They might not speak English, but they all dance to the same standard square-dancing calls."

The Willits Frontier Twirlers are hosting beginners' classes on Monday nights from 7 to 8 pm at the Willits Center for the Arts, starting Monday, August 15. For more information, call 459-9526.

Redwood Empire Fair 2016 Youth Exhibitor Awards Ceremony

After the animals are loaded and before camps get broken down, the youth exhibitors come to the Redwood Empire Fair's Willow Tree Stage for the annual awards ceremony.

Future Farmers of America and 4-H members are honored for their efforts raising livestock, creating exhibits and showing their animals. The event's grand finale, the announcement of the winners of large and small animal Round Robin, is always an exciting highlight of the ceremony.

Katie Penry of Potter Valley 4-H and Keely Ahders of Willits 4-H emceed the event, which was chaired by Willits 4-H's Chris Ceresa. Penry and Ahders led the salute to the American flag, Ahders led the 4-H salute, and Ethan Reed led the FFA creed.

First and foremost, livestock auction checks were given out by a representative of the Savings Bank of Mendocino County to the group leaders. Leaders disperse the checks after a personal thank you card from each exhibitor is given.

Market animal class winners were next: Grand Champion winner receive trophies, and Reserve Grand Champion winners receive plaques. This year, the Grand Champion Market Steer went to Caitlyn Forrester of the Willits FFA. She received the John R. Hildebrand Memorial Trophy and cash award, which was presented by Sheryn Hildebrand. The Reserve Grand Champion Market Steer went to Claire Case-Brackett of the Willits FFA.

The Grand Champion Market Lamb went to Cassidy Daniels of Fort Bragg FFA. She received the Windswept Ranch Perpetual Trophy sponsored by Chuck Ream and a cash prize provided by George Weger. The Reserve Grand Champion Market Lamb went to Hailey Seever of Ukiah Shamrock 4-H.

COLUMN | At the Movies

‘Suicide Squad’

The Story: After thinking a bit, I realized that I did not watch "Suicide Squad" for the story. Basically, a bad cookie subterranean government bureaucrat scours top secret prisons for the baddest bad guys ever – bad guys with superior murder skills. These hooligans, this "suicide squad," is sent after very very bad guys based on the principle that a very very bad guy is worse than our baddest bad guys. No really. That's the operant principle ... that's the movie.

My Thoughts: I totally loved "Suicide Squad." I laughed at the reckless cheekiness of its characters. This flick depends more on its actors than on its story or special effects. I was persuaded by gifted performers with charisma and acting chops to sit through a two-hour movie and enjoy every minute. Margo Robbie is a new star. Like Jennifer Lawrence or Clara Bow, Miss Robbie possesses It! (An indefinable quality that seduces and hypnotizes an audience.) Also, special kudos to Will Smith who brings his own simpatico and low-key humor. He, too, has It! So screw the criticsasters" and bilge spewers at Rotten Tomatoes. This flick and these actors rock ... with exclamation points!!!

Parents: Rated PG. This flick is not for the little ones, though they will want to see it because of big brother or sister. I think parts of "Suicide Squad" are too manic, even crazily random, for young children's dreams.

*Criticaster is your Word of the Day. It refers to noisy, second-rate, bad-tempered but self-important critics. You're welcome.

Willitsian Daniel Essman prefers his reality attenuated by the wisdom of the imagination.

Market Match

CalFresh benefits at the Willits Farmers Market

Regular visitors to the Willits Farmers Market know it is a feast for the senses, a great way to shop locally, and a pleasant social outing. Shopping at a farmers market can also be more expensive than a trip to the supermarket or discount store, though that's not always the case. While this reflects the true cost of growing food, it can leave some of us with tighter budgets feeling cut off from this local treasure.

Good news: It doesn't have to be that way. Market Match opens the farmers market up to the community in new and exciting ways!

Market Match is California's healthy food incentive program for CalFresh/EBT ("food stamp") benefits. The program successfully redirects subsidies away from large corporate ag and into the hands of our local farmers and local families. When you use your EBT card at the farmers' market, you'll be offered $15 extra to purchase fresh fruits and vegetables.

The income limit to qualify for CalFresh/EBT is roughly 138 percent of the federal poverty level, about $2,000 per month for a household size of two, or $2,900 per month for a family of four. CalFresh/EBT benefits are 100% federal funds – your tax dollars at work and coming back to our community.

Using your EBT card at the Willits Farmers Market is simple: go first to the information table at the market to swipe your card and get tokens for your EBT and Market Match incentives. Spend the tokens/ script just like cash with vendors that sell the same items you can purchase with EBT at other stores.

If you're new to the program, start small and be fearless. Take $5 and turn it into $10 with Market Match. Walk around and see what appeals to you. Buy one thing you know you like and try one new thing for fun. Ask for recipe ideas, and use market ingredients in recipes you already know and love. Don't be surprised if you love it and come back for more.

Visit <http://grownlocalmendolake.com/ebt-match/> to watch a video and learn exactly how the program works. There's a video in English and another in Spanish. You can also look for the "Willits Farmers Market" page on Facebook.

The Willits Farmers Market is on Thursdays from 3 to 6:30 pm at Willits City Park.

'Personality' Pinky

Pinky is a 5-month-old female mixed-breed dog weighing 34.6 pounds. She is gorgeous, and she has a truly beautiful personality! Despite being young, she seems to have a calm about her, and while she loves play time, she also loves to just cuddle up and connect. Since she is a puppy, she will need guardians dedicated to training and socialization to ensure that she becomes her best grown-up self. She is smart and eager to please, so we think she'll be a quick learner!

Pinky loves everyone she meets, dogs or people, and would be a great addition to a family with kids. She has a playful but gentle nature that will make her a great friend. All of Pinky's adoption fees have been covered by a generous sponsor.

The Ukiah Animal Shelter is located at 298 Plant Road in Ukiah, and adoption hours are Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 10 am to 4:30 pm and Wednesday from 10 am to 6:30 pm. ## Saturday Soccer Tournament

Alumni Team Mighty Morphin takes home the 2016 trophy

The Willits High School soccer team kicked off its 2016/17 season with the annual Alumni Soccer Tournament on Saturday, with team Mighty Morphin taking home the championship trophy.

The tournament is held each year in August as a fundraiser to help pay expenses for both the girls and boys WHS soccer teams for the coming season.

"We used to do one big game," said Noel Woodhouse, current boys' soccer coach for the Wolverines, as well as a WHS alumnus himself. "People really like the tournament format better. It's more games, and more people can play. We have two high school teams this year, so that's exciting."

Because there is no junior varsity squad at WHS, younger high school players rarely get the opportunity to play in regular season games. So, the freshmen and sophomore players of both the boys and girls Wolverines squads formed their own teams, Willits Wolverines White and Willits Wolverines Green, for the tournament.

The other five teams consisted of Willits alumni, each player paying $10 to participate in not only kicking goals, but also helping the Wolverines to reach their financial goals for the season.

Other supporters during the season include mothers such as "Team Mom" Jocelyn Miller, who goes to every game and provides water and transportation.

"I have a mini van, so I can take half the soccer team with me, so we don't have to spend additional money to rent a van," Miller said. "I'm hoping they're going to do really well [this season]. They've been playing together for Educational Display Award, $50, from the fair for her efforts in creating and displaying her project in the Junior building. The Perpetual Sportsmanship Award was also presented during Sunday's ceremony. Vic and Maggie Weaver sponsor the plaque presented to the winner. Nora Martin, David Aban of Fort Bragg 4-H, Cassidy Daniels, Samantha Arms of Willits 4-H, and Julie Brown of Potter Valley FFA were up for the title, and David Aban took home the prize.

"David was unable to show or sell his steer for health reasons," said Ceresa. "However, each and every day David was in the beef barn cleaning stalls, sweeping aisle-ways, cleaning, and washing all day. He was super helpful and supportive during the show, never letting his loss bring him down."

Earlier in July, the horse show and horse showmanship events for the 2016 Redwood Empire Fair were held at the Willits Frontier Days rodeo grounds. Participants competed under saddle in English and Western classes, and completed the in-hand showmanship classes there, too. Winners were announced post-show for overall high point awards, but the showmanship awards were presented at Sunday's ceremony.

For 4-H novice, first place went to Hayden Hayes of Ukiah Shamrock 4-H. First place in 4-H intermediate went to Paige Whitcomb of Long Valley 4-H, and first place in 4-H advanced went to Gracie Silva of Long Valley 4-H. First place in Novice FFA went to Sierra Skinner of Willits FFA, and FFA advanced went to Jacob Crowhurst of Ukiah Shamrock 4-H.

Winners of each species compete in the overall showmanship contest: Round Robin. This is divided into large and small animal groups, for FFA and 4-H. Winners of each species, and competitors in Round Robin included:

Results of 4-H small animal Round Robin: first place Emma Farrell, second place Wyatt Gaskell, third place Keely Ahders, fourth place Grace Croskey, fifth place Stephany Brundage, and sixth place Aurora David. Results for 4-H large animal Round Robin: First place Erica Ilg, second place Chancelyn Johnson, third place Keely Ahders, fourth place Katie Brown, fifth place Grace Brazil, sixth place Grant Forrester, and seventh place Jimmy Whitley.

Results for FFA small animal Round Robin: first place Kayla Smith, second place Isaac Arnold, third place Hugo Chavez, and fourth place Bryna Garcia. Results for FFA large animal Round Robin: first place Caitlyn Forrester, second place Jacob Crowhurst, third place Lucy Burris, fourth place Madison Forrester, fifth place Morgan Riley, sixth place Katie Penry, and seventh place Ian Seymour.

Three exhibitors also won scholarships, and were presented with their envelopes at the awards ceremony. Madison Ellege and Nathan Yanes received the 2016 Mendocino County Junior Livestock Auction Committee Scholarships, and Shannon Whetzel of Ukiah Shamrock 4-H received the Dr. Russell Preston 4-H Scholarship.

Four 4-H leaders were nominated for the Leader of the Year award, including Alexis Rutherford, Briana Ramsey, Kristen Looney and Amy Forrester. The 2016 winner was Kristen Looney, leader of Redwood Valley/Calpella 4-H.

Her nomination card noted: "She has always looked at the bright side of things and always has a solution. She is always there for us. She has been a leader for 13 years and our community leader for six of those years. She is always the first to congratulate and support us, no matter what we are doing, both inside and outside of 4-H. She is encouraging, sweet, funny, enthusiastic, generous, and so much more. She makes every activity fun, while still teaching us how to be good citizens and always trying to make the best better. She has given her life to the Redwood Valley/Calpella 4-H group for years. Being a leader is a year-round job, and she balanced this while also having her own family business. She has had two children go through 4-H from a young age. She has also dedicated many summers to 4-H's annual 4-H Camp. She deserves this award."

Primary 4-H members, the littiest of the clubs, were also honored at the awards ceremony. They, along with the Clean Stall Award winners, were granted entry to the ice cream social hosted by Jay Epstein State Farm Insurance of Ukiah that was held just after the awards ceremony.

Clean Stall Award winners included Long Valley 4-H and Fort Bragg FFA for beef, Redwood Valley 4-H and Fort Bragg FFA for goats, Willits 4-H and Fort Bragg FFA for poultry, Willits 4-H for rabbits, Willits 4-H and Potter Valley FFA for sheep, and Redwood Valley/Calpella 4-H and Anderson Valley FFA for hogs. The Outstanding Clean Stall Award went to the Willits 4-H Sheep Group. Winners will have their group names embroidered on the perpetual banners displayed at the fair.

"The Fair Awards Committee thanks the many businesses and individuals that made donations to our endeavor. We appreciate the support of the many clubs and chapters as well," said Penry. "We especially thank Jan Hoyman Studio, MacNab's Men's Wear, Mary Ann Underhill, Mendocino County Farm Supply, Rainbow Ag, Bob Gaston Farrier and Forge, and Ukiah Trophy for going the extra mile in assisting the committee in our award selections and purchases."

Redwood Empire Fair Awards

Willits Weekly: 2016 'Media of the Year'

Submitted by the Redwood Empire Fair

Willits Weekly is our 2016 Media of the Year Award recipient. Willits Weekly is a locally owned and independent newspaper co-founded by Jennifer Poole and Maureen Moore. Established May 2, 2013, Willits Weekly has a circulation of approximately 3,500, primarily in Willits, where you can pick up a copy from the counters of many of the local businesses, including cafes, restaurants, beauty salons, banks, and many retail stores. They also distribute through schools and municipal organizations, and partner with a newspaper delivery service to provide home delivery as well as distribution in Laytonville, Covelo and Ukiah.

Jennifer's and Maureen's vision was to produce a hometown newspaper with its own voice that truly reflected the news and community events of the area, with quality color photography, relevant articles and affordable advertising rates for local advertisers. In the day of digital media, print publication profit margins are slim, but with a supportive community and an excellent product, Willits Weekly has been a success. Just some of the praise from their readership includes: "I love your newspaper. I read it word for word every week." "Willits Weekly is the most informative newspaper in Mendocino County." "Thank you so much for what you've done for the community."

Jennifer is editor and publisher of this weekly publication. Her newspaper publication career started in the Bay Area in the late 1970s, writing listings for "The East Bay Review of the Performing Arts." She subsequently did editorial and production work for numerous publications, including the San Francisco Bay Guardian and the San Jose Mercury News. She moved to Mendocino County in 1992, and worked at The Willits News and the Ukiah Daily Journal as a copy editor and as a reporter.

Maureen is art director and chief photographer. She was born and raised in Willits, and was interested in photography from an early age. Maureen honed her skills working at The Willits News as a photographer and reporter, and eventually started up her own portrait and lifestyle photography business, Mphotograpy.

Her clients include Willits Frontier Days, Howard Memorial Hospital, Ukiah Valley Medical Center and, of course, our very Redwood Empire Fair.

This is the first award – of what we at the Redwood Empire Fair predict will be many – for Willits Weekly.

A lifeline for Brooktrails utility users

Brooktrails residents who have fallen behind on their utility bills may be eligible for some financial relief, following action at Tuesday's meeting of the township's board of directors.

Directors approved changes to the township's utility code that would allow them to abate accrued interest on a customer's utility account, provided they have paid all the arrears in their bill except for the penalties.

Before they could make a plea to directors for relief, however, customers would have to submit documentation to General Manager Denise Rose explaining the circumstances behind their difficulties.

Rose would pass their application for relief on to the board, which would then approve or reject the plea based on whether or not there were extenuating circumstances as to why the customer could not pay their utility bill during successive billing periods, whether the applicant is currently in compliance with all district ordinances (including all other utility code provisions), and whether directors consider it "in the public interest" to abate the penalties.

The board's ruling will be final.

If penalties are abated, the township will issue a "satisfaction of lien," if a lien has been recorded.

The ordinance will become effective in 30 days.

County asks to join energy consortium

The Mendocino County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously at their August 2 meeting to petition Sonoma Clean Power Authority to grant the county membership in its organization.

The energy consortium buys energy independently of PG&E, but uses PG&E infrastructure to deliver energy to homes that have requested that service. It was formed in June 2013 under the provisions of Assembly Bill 117, a law approved by the California Legislature in 2002. Energy consortiums operating under the 2002 legislation are referred to as community choice aggregations, or CCAs.

CCAs can provide energy cheaper than for-profit corporations because CCAs don't have to return a profit to shareholders. Nor do they have to pay for upkeep and repair of extensive energy generation and delivery infrastructure.

In addition, CCAs have the option of offering a "cleaner, greener" mix of energy sources than large energy corporations.

Over the past year and a half, county supervisors have had numerous conversations with representatives from various CCAs, including Sonoma Clean Power, California Clean Power and Marin Clean Energy. Over the past few months, Sonoma Clean Power has emerged as the county's preferred option, in part because it seemed most willing to respond positively to the county's various requests.

Deputy CEO Chris Shaver told supervisors at the August 2 meeting that the Sonoma Clean Power Authority board of directors voted on June 7 to offer membership in its CCA to the County of Mendocino and the cities of Point Arena, Fort Bragg and Willits. The City of Ukiah was not offered membership, because it's part of a publicly owned power consortium, the Northern California Power Authority.

An information sheet provided by Sonoma Clean Power compared rates and energy sources for itself and PG&E. The information was based on published rates for PG&E for March 24, 2016, and Sonoma Clean Power for July 1, 2016.

The document compares rates between two options for PG&E and two options for Sonoma Clean Power.

The first PG&E option is its "regular mix" of energy sources. An average PG&E bill for a typical house during the February-March period of time was $120.39. The source mix for the energy was 30 percent renewable energy, 6 percent large hydroelectric, 25 percent natural gas, 23 percent nuclear, and 17 percent unspecified.

The comparable energy option from Sonoma Clean Power is its "Clean Start" program, composed of energy made up of 37 percent renewables (consisting of 28 percent wind energy and 9 percent geothermal energy), 41 percent large hydroelectric energy, and 22 percent unspecified.

For the two sources above, "unspecified" means energy that is purchased on the energy market, the source of which cannot be traced. The Sonoma Clean Power information sheet claims some part of the unspecified types of energy may be renewable energy, but it is impossible to say how much.

The totally clean PG&E option is its solar mix, which consists of energy generated exclusively from solar sources. A typical homeowner using a baseline amount of energy in February and March 2016 in Sonoma County would have paid $138.65 for that energy.

The comparable Sonoma Clean Power program is its EverGreen program, which provides energy generated 100 percent from geothermal sources. The typical homeowner who used the baseline amount of energy during the June 2016 period would have paid $131.28 for that month's supply of clean, renewable energy.

When Mendocino County is formally accepted by Sonoma Clean Power as a member, which is anticipated to occur in September, individual local ratepayers will have an opportunity sometime next year to choose whether they want to participate in the program.

Herbal drinks for summer

Donna d'Terra
Columnist

With all of this hot weather, it's important to drink more liquids in order to stay hydrated. Herbal drinks are easy to make, nutritive, refreshing, and a healthy replacement for sodas. Below are a few recipes to try.

Peppermint / Apple Juice Tea

Put 2 heaping tablespoons dried peppermint leaves in a pot. Pour 2 cups boiling water over, and let steep, covered, for one hour. Strain out herbs. Add an equal amount of apple juice. Chill.

Ruby Tea

In 2 quarts of water, simmer, in a covered pot, 2 inches of fresh ginger root, for 10 minutes. Turn off heat, and add 1 tablespoon chamomile, 1 tablespoon red raspberry leaf, and 1 tablespoon hibiscus flowers. Steep, covered, for 10 minutes. Strain out herbs. Chill.

Herbal Electrolyte Drink

Mix equal parts nettle, milky oat, red clover, rosehips and alfalfa. Put 1 cup of this mixture in a quart jar. Fill the jar with boiling water, put a lid on, let steep 4 hours, strain out herbs, and chill.

A few more ideas to try:

If you are making a large amount of iced tea to serve to a group, fill a 1 cup container with the brewed tea and freeze it. When it is time to serve your tea, empty the frozen tea into your tea server. This will keep the tea cold without diluting it.

Herbal Juicesicles

Use any of the above recipes to make tea. Add an equal amount of fruit juice that does not contain added sugar. Pour into popsicle makers and freeze.

Borage Flower Ice Cubes

Pick borage flowers when fully open. Fill an ice cube tray with water and add a single borage flower to each section. (Using tweezers can make the flowers easier to handle.)

Herbal Waters

To your glass or portable water bottle filled with water, add one of the following, to give the water a subtle flavor that may encourage you to drink more water throughout the day: Slices of fresh lemon, ginger, cucumber, orange or lime; a dry sprig of lavender; or a fresh sprig of cilantro, lemon balm or basil.

Happy summer!

Dog Days

A festive opening night at the Willits Art Center

Live dogs and dog-themed food added a festive atmosphere at the opening of the Willits Center for the Arts August show, "Dog Days of Summer," on Saturday night. The evening was pleasant and not too much like the dog days of August, much to the relief of those in attendance.

This show is very diverse, even though it has the central theme of dogs. It was interesting to see the different interpretations of man's best friend. On display are sculptures, handcrafted wooden pieces from reclaimed wood, jewelry from reclaimed copper and aluminum, photography, colored pencil art, paintings, wire sculptures, and fabric art.

Teresa Robertson, organizer of the show, said it was a labor of love putting together the venue for herself and other artists to display their dog-focused art. Teresa said her husband, Dan Lowden, "who is incredibly level-headed," helped set the show. She credits him for making sure all the paintings, quilts and photos were level and grouped pleasantly. Lowden was also instrumental in making sure each of their family's own bull terriers visited to see the show.

Adri Vega of the Humane Society for Inland Mendocino County was on hand early in the evening to offer dogs for adoption. This turned out to be a popular stopping-off point before patrons came into the show. One male Chihuahua was placed on hold and will be adopted once he is neutered. Sgt. Jake Donohue of the Willits Police Department told Willits Weekly that both Wilcox and the driver of the pickup, 55-year-old Ryan Grable of Willits, were heading south in the middle turn lane when the accident occurred.

"It's under investigation right now [as] to who occupied the lane first," Donohue said. "[Wilcox] was in the center left turn lane headed southbound. We're looking at how long [Grable] was occupying that same lane.

"Essentially there was a collision between those two [at about 3:30 pm], and it caused her [vehicle] to flip."

John Kvasnicka, co-owner of Scoops Deli, and Mike Giles, owner of The Purple Moose, helped to remove Wilcox from her overturned car. Although Kvasnicka didn't see the actual collision, he spoke to Wilcox about it.

"The truck sped out in front of her, and she didn't see him," Kvasnicka said. "He kind of broadsided her. She must have hit that car just right. Her tires must have hit the tires of the other vehicle, and it catapulted her up and over. You couldn't make that happened again if you tried."

According to Kvasnicka, this isn't the first time he and Wilcox have met under similar circumstances.

"That same lady was rear-ended in that same spot six months ago," Kvasnicka said. "And it totaled her car. I helped her that time, too. She said, 'I remember you, you're the one that helped me last time.'" a really long time; they're family."

Coach Woodhouse expressed cautious optimism regarding the 2016 season for his boys' team.

"A lot of good seniors will be playing their last year; I'm really excited for them," Woodhouse said. "We planned a nice long schedule; we'll be playing 23 games or so. Every one of those games will be hard, because the league is so competitive, from top to bottom."

For the tournament on Saturday, the field of play was shortened to roughly half its normal size, with teams fielding seven players each, including the goalie. Each team was required to play at least three females, and a goal scored by a female was worth two points, while a male's was worth one point.

"I think the girls are just as good as the boys," said Miller. "So I don't like that rule, myself."

The Golden Boot was awarded to a male and female for most goals scored throughout the tournament. Winners for the boys were Juan Jacinto and Damian Rodriguez, with five goals each. Stephanie Macias won the boot for the girls, with six total goals.

Team "99 Problems," named after the year the team's players graduated, came in second, falling to Mighty Morphin by two goals.

The Wolverine seniors came in third, and Team Damian came in fourth.

The "Battle of the Bad" trophy was won by team Platypus who defeated the younger Wolverine squad.

The Wolverine soccer team will host its first regular season game next Friday, August 15, against Anderson Valley. The game starts at 4 pm at Willits High School.

(1) states, "No agricultural activity, operation, or facility, or appurtenances thereof, conducted or maintained for commercial purposes, and in a manner consistent with proper and accepted customs and standards, as established and followed by similar agricultural operations in the same locality, shall be or become a nuisance, private or public, due to any changed condition in or about the locality, after it has been in operation for more than three years, if it was not a nuisance at the time it began."

The letter goes on to expressly include forestry as one of those protected agricultural operations. Section 3482.5 (e) states, in part: "For purposes of this section, the term 'agricultural activity, operation or facility, or appurtenances thereof,' shall include, but not be limited to, the cultivation and tillage of the soil, dairying, the production, cultivation, growing, and harvesting of any agricultural commodity, including timber ... and any practices performed by a farmer or on a farm as incident to or in conjunction with, those farming operations."

The letter from MRC quotes chapter and verse, asserting state law takes precedence over any local law to the contrary. "Section 3482.5 (d) states, 'This section shall prevail over any contrary provision of any ordinance or regulation of any city, county, city and county, or other political subdivision of the state.'"

The letter also claims Mendocino County has provisions within its county code that say the same thing.

Based on the provisions of the state and of the county, MRC's Thibeault asserted MRC is exempt from the provisions of Measure V. "State and county laws have been enacted to specifically limit future attempts to declare timber operations a public nuisance. For these reasons we conclude the specific silvicultural treatment referred to as "hack and squirt" and "frilling" is exempt from a public nuisance determination and the county lacks independent authority to adopt any ordinance restricting its practice."

John Anderson, director of forest practices for MRC, clarified that MRC qualifies for protection under state law because it has been hacking and squirting since the company was founded in 1998.

"Our reading of the law is that someone who has not previously used hack and squirt, and then who starts doing it, on that, someone could sue, maybe. But since we've supervisors had supported Little Lake and other fire districts getting Proposition 172 money.

"The county states that fire [services] are not a function or responsibility of the county, but they realize that EMS [emergency medical services] is," said Magann. "Countywide, approximately 70 percent of the fire calls are calls that are EMS-related, but the county is still reluctant to identify fire for accounting purposes for the 172 [funds]."

This has been an ongoing issue with allocating Proposition 172 funds, a one-half-cent state sales tax passed in 1993 to benefit local public safety activities. Originally, the measure was thought to include fire departments, but they have been largely cut out.

"The thing with [Proposition] 172 is that fire was dumped out of recognition on that," said Magann. "The county proposed to recognize that fire was an important element of Mendocino County, and now it seems like somewhere there's some reluctance."

Third District Supervisor Tom Woodhouse attended Tuesday's fire board meeting, and said he still expected LLFD to receive a portion of 172 funds in the near future.

"It's on the agenda, and we're going to slug it out," he said, "and it's a pretty ridiculous thing to say [fire rescue] is not an emergency response. So I'm expecting it to go through; it's just what we call it."

The fire board directors and Woodhouse also discussed the likelihood that local fire districts, including Little Lake, would receive funds if the county's Cannabis Business License Tax passes in November.

Magann relayed that at an August 2 board of supervisors meeting, supervisors "advised that fire and EMS would receive priority consideration for funding from the November ballot initiative." This was after Magann presented supervisors with a letter from the Mendocino County Fire Chiefs Association requesting such consideration.

No specific percentage has been designated for fire department funding yet, although Woodhouse did note supervisors indicated there were four areas they'd like to spend 50 percent of the initiative's tax windfall on if the measure passes: fire departments/EMS; staffing the new mental health facility (if the November sales tax measure passes to build it); road maintenance; and environmental cleanup of illegal cannabis operations.

Directors also discussed LLFD's role – along with several other county fire departments – in helping fight the Soberanes Fire near Monterey in recent weeks. As of Wednesday, it was reported the fire had burned some 69,000 acres in 20 days and was only 50 percent contained. Little Lake sent five firefighters and one engine, and logged 270 hours of work time at the blaze. Hopland, Ukiah, Anderson Valley, and Redwood Coast fire districts also sent engines and firefighters.

Magann said it was the first time since he joined the department that Little Lake firefighting assets had been called out of county in July. Those callouts, he said, generally came in late August and September. Out-of-county wildland blazes give firefighters experience and teach lessons not often learned during in-county calls.

"We talk during our wildland training, about the effects of fire and fire behavior. But to see what's going on out there and witness it and experience it, it really opens the eyes," Magann said.

He also noted that LLFD continues to receive a high volume of emergency calls in general, significantly more than last year. As of Tuesday, some 344 calls had been received for the year, about 60 more than at the same time last year.

The rest of Golf

is seeking "qualified and recognized golf management firms or an individual" to manage "all aspects" of the course. That includes, Rose states in a request for proposals, maintaining the course and facilities, and "investing in infrastructure."

The successful proposer, she says, "is expected to provide a golf course with a level of service that will exceed the expectations of the community and its guests."

The nine-hole ball and disc golf course was established in the mid-1960s, and the Cedarholms have poured a lot of work into fairway grasses and greens over the past 18 months. However, Rose concedes, "a few areas on some of the greens have suffered either fungus or shade and tree root shade problems."

During the last 15 years, the course's redwoods and other established trees "have not been well-maintained," and currently there is no walking path along the course's outer perimeter.

Whoever wins the contract to manage the course will be "expected to provide all staffing, equipment, amenities, marketing, routine maintenance and repairs, and services for the complete operations and maintenance of the property." That includes maintaining the course's aging, leaky irrigation system, one factor in the Cedarholms' decision to leave.

In return, the new management will receive all the course-generated greens fees and annual membership fees collected during the lifetime of the contract, as well as all pro shop sales receipts.

It's a big job, especially because the golf course faces "some serious questions regarding cohesion, investment and long-term management and operation," according to the report by Andy Staples, of Scottsdale, Arizona-based Staples Golf Design, which was distributed to Brooktrails directors at their May 10 meeting.

It's a problem common to most golf courses, says Staples, a member of the American Society of Golf Course Architects. "Nationwide, courses are looking for reasons to invest," and most haven't found them, "due to a lack of support for allocating budget dollars towards an amenity that loses money."

A typical golf facility, he says, is "traditionally utilized by only 10 percent of the community." As a result, most courses "are left to support themselves on the merits of their design, unique attributes of location and property, or pricing structure."

That means most municipal courses "end up breaking even at best, or more often, end up losing money."

In the case of the Brooktrails course, those problems are compounded by the fact that "the overall health of the golf course – and entire greenbelt – is been doing it for more than three years, it can't be deemed a nuisance, under state law."

Anderson added the company has been waiting for a response from the county to its July 6 letter, but has yet to receive one.

Contacted Monday, Mendocino County Counsel Katharine Elliott declined to comment on the county's attitude toward the claims in MRC's July 6 letter.

On Tuesday, Albion-Little River Fire Protection District Fire Chief Ted Williams of Citizens for Fire Safe Forests, the citizens group which put Measure V on the ballot, at first declined to comment on what he termed "brewing litigation," but then commented anyway.

"Challenging Measure V, an ordinance passed by an overwhelming majority of voters, shows great disrespect for the people of Mendocino County," Williams said. "This move is a reversal of MRC's previously advertised 'restoration of public trust' approach to engagement," Williams added.

Measure V provides that any tree intentionally killed and left standing in the forest for more than 90 days shall be declared a public nuisance. It also declares any landowner who leaves intentionally killed trees standing for more than 90 days, when personal or property damage is caused by said tree or trees, shall be held liable for those damages.

Measure V, however, did not include provisions for enforcement.

Second District Supervisor John McCowen recently confirmed the county does not presently have staff to enforce a public nuisance ordinance on Mendocino County's 1 million acres of privately owned timberlands.

Mendocino Redwood Company has been using the "hack-and-squirt" or "frill" treatment to kill tan oak trees on its 225,000 acres of property since 1998. The company estimates it has treated some 97,633 acres of its forestland. Critics of the practice allege company employees have killed a million trees a year that way, or 18 million trees.

Company officials say the practice is necessary to encourage the growth of redwood trees. Since 1998, the company claims to have added more than a billion board feet of conifer biomass to its timber inventory.

deteriorating quickly," Staples says in his assessment. "This can be seen in the regressing amounts and conditions of the turf, the increased stifling of the course due to redwood overgrowth, and some of the outdated structures throughout the greenbelt, including the bridges on the golf course, the kitchen in the pro shop, and the playground and par course equipment."

Most, if not all, of those items "will have to be addressed at some point," he argues, "and by addressing them now, priorities can be set and [benefits] can be maximized as economically and effectively as possible."

In his report, Staples advises Brooktrails directors to draw up a comprehensive master plan that would make the golf course the centerpiece of an outdoor activity hub "residents will view as a significant benefit to living in or near Brooktrails."

It's a suggestion Rose and her staff heartily endorse, and Tuesday they were given the green light to proceed with the project.

Rose is calling for a two-pronged approach, an overall grand plan of what the entire parkland will look like, "including its ties with the entire greenbelt, to create a full vision for the future."

The master plan will focus on "park planning ... and create a phased plan for future development."

The plan also will focus on "the specifics of the golf course, adjoining trail and uses in and around the clubhouse." This would allow the board of directors to "determine the future of the golf course and set realistic goals for its possible improvement," and allow the board and the community to determine "how it fits into a larger plan for leisure services."

In his needs assessment report, Staples recommended Brooktrails form "focus groups" of both golfers and non-golfers to investigate how to link Lake Emily, Ohl Grove, the community garden, playground, par course and other areas, using a "system of trails and clearly defined circulation paths" that would make the clubhouse "the main trail head or meeting place for the entire greenbelt."

He also suggested including all the ideas currently under discussion for the greenbelt, such as a dog park and amphitheater, that would "increase the overall enjoyment" of residents and promote "health-oriented activities."

Rose says her staff is planning townhall-type meetings and charrettes "to identify levels of support for investing in the golf course and trail system" and to "create a vision statement for the golf course and clubhouse area," to ensure that "if the board moves forward, the work will have positive long-term effect."

The plan also will address preliminary cost estimates and an implementation plan.

Appreciating the Architecture of Willits

Several neighborhoods of Willits feature the architecture of years gone by, including Redwood Avenue, Pearl Street, Wood Street, School Street, and State Street, with their Queen Anne cottages and Craftsman bungalows. Many of these are featured in the historic book "The Architectural Heritage of Willits" which was published in 1988 by Nelson Streib and Susan Pritchard. The book was commissioned by the City of Willits and includes invaluable information on the heritage of many of Willits' historic homes and commercial buildings. The Willits branch of the Mendocino County Library has a reference copy of the book. Here are a few "now and then" photos of some homes featured in the book to enjoy.

Interested in real estate?

Consider earning a real estate certificate through Mendocino College

One of the many certificate programs that Mendocino College offers is a "certificate of achievement" in real estate, through the community college's business department.

As per the college catalogue: "This certificate prepares students for a career in real estate sales/analysis, land development, real estate marketing, finance, mortgage lending, appraisal, escrow, and property management. The course requirements satisfy the educational requirements for both a real estate broker's license and a salesperson's continuing education requirements as prescribed by the California Department of Real Estate."

Core classes (all 3 units) required for the 24-unit certificate include "Real Estate Principles" (RLS 60); "Real Estate Practices" (RLS 61); "Real Estate Appraisal" (RLS 62); "Real Estate Finance" (RLS 63); "Legal Aspects of Real Estate" (RLS 64); "Introduction to Marketing" (BUS 151); and "Introduction to Business" (BUS 230).

To earn the certificate, students are also required additional 3 units from a number of possible business electives, including "Fundamentals of Home Inspections" (1 credit); "Real Estate Economics" (3 credits); "Fundamentals of Geology for Real Estate" (1 credit); "Property Management" (3 credits); "Real Estate Investments" (3 credits); "Real Estate Financial Calculations" (0.5 credit); and "Real Estate Licensing Preparation" (1 credit).

Fall semester classes at Mendocino College start on August 22. Real estate classes are offered at the Ukiah campus, located at 1000 Hensley Creek Road.

Required real estate classes for the real estate certificate that are being offered this fall include two regular classes: "Real Estate Principles," taught by Nash Gonzalez on Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 9:20 pm; and "Legal Aspects of Real Estate," taught by Frank Zotter on Wednesday evenings from 6:30 to 9:20 pm.

Mendocino College also offers two required short-term classes this fall. The first is "Fundamentals of Home Inspections," taught by Nash Gonzalez, on Friday nights, from 6 to 9:50 pm, from August 26 through September 23.

The second short-term class is a Friday/Saturday class, "Real Estate Practices," taught by Nash Gonzalez, which meets on Friday, November 4 from 8 to 11:50 am and Saturday, November 5 from 12:30 to 6 pm; on Friday, November 18 from 8 to 11:50 am and Saturday, November 19 from 12:30 to 6 pm; and on Saturday, December 2 from 12:30 to 6 pm.

The two required business classes are also being offered this fall. One section of the required "Introduction to Business" class, taught by Walter Waterbury, is set for Mondays and Wednesdays from 12:30 to 1:50 pm. There are two other "Introduction to Business" sections taught as online classes this fall (log in on August 22), and one online "Introduction to Marketing" class, too (log in on August 22).

COLUMN | Selzer on Real Estate

How's the market?

By way of introduction, I'm Dick Selzer, and I've been in real estate in Mendocino County since 1976. After doing this for more than 40 years, I thought I'd share a few facts and opinions about buying, selling, renting and leasing property. I hope you find the information useful.

The question most often asked of real estate agents anytime they're out and about is, "How's the market?" So that's the question I'll be answering in all kinds of ways.

Right now, the market is hot. Housing prices have pretty much recovered from the bubble and are going up. Rates remain incredibly low, and there's not much for sale.

So while this is a great time to buy, there are a few obstacles in the way, one of which is finding a property that meets your needs. If water were not so scarce in Brooktrails and Willits proper, more houses could be built, but unless the Wente dam is raised or we build a pipe to bring in water from Eureka (or desalinated water from the coast), I don't see any more water becoming available here any time soon.

While new housing is unlikely, we're not experiencing a population explosion, so prices probably won't change dramatically one way or the other in the short term. As for rates, people always ask whether I think they will go up, down, or remain where they are. It's impossible to know, but experts don't think a rate hike is coming in the immediate term. Even with the British exit from the European Union ("Brexit") last month, the U.S. stock market has already recovered. Lots of unrest remains in Europe, Russia and even China, and all that unrest can affect interest rates in the United States, but at the moment, rates are the lowest they've been in decades and no big changes are expected.

If you're thinking of buying a house, I recommend you do two things: find a Realtor you like, trust and can relate to, and get preapproved for a loan.

I know this sounds self-serving, but finding a good Realtor really is a great idea. When you think about it, it's clearly in a Realtor's best interest to help you meet your goals. If you don't get what you want, Realtors can't make a living, so the good ones educate themselves about the industry and can provide you with a lot of important information and advice.

If you commit to one agent – and it doesn't have to be one of mine – that agent will commit to you. Once you've got a good agent, here's what you can expect.

- They'll carefully listen to your needs and actively look for properties that meet those needs, so you won't waste your time looking at houses, land or commercial properties that don't work for you.
- They'll arrange to get you pre-approved for a loan so you're ready when the right property becomes available.
- They'll stay up-to-date on the latest market information (like inventory and mortgage rates), so they can make recommendations to save you money or share opportunities that you might not have been aware of.
- They'll work in a manner that's consistent with your lifestyle. Let your agent know how and when you like to communicate (phone call, text, email, mornings, evenings, etc.), and they'll work with you so you get information the way you want it.

So now you've got a Realtor, and the first thing they recommend is getting pre-approved for a loan. Huh?

There are basically two levels of loan qualification – "pre-qualified" and "pre-approved." Pre-qualified consists of sitting down with an agent and doing some simple calculations to figure out how much house you can afford. To become "pre-approved" for a loan means working with your agent to find a loan broker who will review all your assets, liabilities, tax returns, W-2s, credit history, and any other relevant financial information to begin the process of applying for a loan.

Next time, I'll go into detail about the benefits of becoming pre-approved and how to do it. If you have questions in the meantime about real estate or property management, please contact me at rselzer@selzerrealty.com or visit www.realtyworldselzer.com. If I use your suggestion in a column, I'll send you a $5 gift card to Roland's Bakery. Hot, Hot, Hot

Willits real estate market is back up again

The real estate market in Willits is definitely hot right now – as Dick Selzer says in his column this month. Locals have seen For Sale signs go up and come down much faster than a few years ago. Prices, says Jennifer Poole, Willits Realtor Coldwell Banker/Mendo Realty, have gone up as much as 12 percent in less than a year.

“Prices started going up,” Barksdale said, “and then we took quite a jump at the end of last year, in sold prices, and at the beginning of the year, January and February, we saw a substantial increase in prices, too. Everybody started piling their places on the market, and then prices got a little too high.

“A three-bedroom, two-bath home is expected to sell at $260,000 to $290,000, and some have gone into the $320,000 range,” Barksdale said. “There’s a couple of nice vintage houses in town that recently sold for $320,000 – houses that were old but charming.”

“There’s almost nothing in Willits under $200,000 anymore,” agreed Peter Smith, Realtor at RE/MAX Full Spectrum Realty in Ukiah and Peter Smith Realty in Willits. “And nothing in Ukiah is under $300,000. Drop down to Sonoma County, you can’t find anything under $500,000. In Cloverdale, you might be able to find something in the ‘fours’ range.”

Smith looked up the statistics: On Monday afternoon, there were 57 residential units for sale in the Willits area – most of them in Brooktrails. “Only 24 of them are not in Brooktrails,” Smith said. About half of these 57 homes already had offers – in some cases multiple offers. Smith said his rough estimate is about a third of real estate offers “fall out” without a deal being made.

“Most of the inventory is in Brooktrails,” agreed Barksdale. “Most of the rentals, too. But there’s not a huge inventory right now: There’s more demand than there is inventory, and because prices went up so rapidly here, some people got priced out again. Affordable houses are getting sold rather quickly. A lot of people want over $300,000 or close to it, and those houses are not moving quite so rapidly.”

The rental market is tight, too. “There are no rentals,” Smith said. “The reality is, even though the market is tight, it is easier to buy a house than to find one to rent, and the payment is the same. The issue is the down payment. And what I’m all of a sudden finding is that there seem to be some great down-payment assistance programs for people who make less than $80,000.” These programs are for people with a good credit score and a decent household income for Mendocino County, but “who just don’t have the ability to save up to 20 percent down – or even 5 percent down. These programs are a great opportunity.” Some the programs, Smith said, stipulate that if you live in the house for five years, the down payment loan is forgiven.

So, given how hard it is to find a place to rent right now in the Willits area, is it a good time to buy rental property?

“There’s not a lot of rental property for sale out there,” Barksdale said. “Prices have gone up, and there’s not a lot of real deals out there. Sometimes there are, especially if you’re willing to do the work.” Barksdale also noted that one of the reasons rentals are scarce in Willits right now is the Caltrans workers working on the bypass. “When the bypass is complete,” he said, “those workers will be pulling up stakes,” which is likely to loosen up the rental market a bit.

Smith said he’s getting two or three calls a day from people looking for a place to rent. “Landlords get to be pretty picky right now if they want,” he said. As far as buying rental property: “People are buying everything that would have a cash flow,” Smith said. “You watch: One comes on the market, and it’s bid on right away; four or five people are bidding the price up. That’s the way it’s happening, and the price point that it comes on the market – a price where an investor could make a return – it’s gone.” Smith said what limited multi-unit properties are for sale in the area are also desirable now: “A couple of years ago, duplexes weren’t worth much, but that has changed.”

Back in 2004, faced with a state housing mandate, Willits City Council adopted a “goal” of adding 436 new housing units to Willits by 2008. Nobody really thought it was possible at the time, and with the economic crash in 2007 – bringing housing prices in Willits down by 50 percent – and then the drought, discussion about building so many new residential units dropped by the wayside.

“We don’t have many apartments or condominiums,” Smith said, “and maybe that’s where the city could encourage low-income housing, with condos or cooperative housing. Places with 15 housing units on a couple of acres, like the senior center. Nobody has the property to build subdivisions. Maybe the city could get very liberal with people converting garages to granny units. That’s what we need: one-bedroom and small units.”

Peter Smith

Bill Barksdale

Both Barksdale and Smith said many of the potential buyers they are seeing are locals, some of them from the “back to the land” generation looking to move to town from rural acreage outside of Willits. “They want to be able to walk to the store,” Smith said. “They don’t want to have to walk a water line to see where a bear chewed through it. There’s a lot of people moving down to town, especially on the west side.”

But although neither sees a “population explosion” happening here, there are newcomers looking at Willits, too.

“Most of the interest is from locals,” Barksdale said, “but I am seeing more people coming from out of the Bay Area, which is becoming too expensive.” One new Willits household just moved here from Ashland, Oregon: “Usually it’s the opposite direction,” Barksdale laughed, “but Ashland is getting pretty expensive now.”

the big bath, so things should basically be pretty stable now, with prices still pushing back up again, as long as they don’t start making crazy loans again.”

“The real estate market,” Barksdale said, “is probably the biggest foundation in our economy, the biggest cornerstone. When real estate prices go crashing down, everything goes crashing down. Everything is tied to it: How you shop, where you buy, not only the local lumberyard, but supplies that you buy for fixing your house, furniture, carpets and floor coverings, and lawns and lawn care and gardening. All of these things are tied to job creation, and all are tied to the real estate foundation.”

Restoring Willits' Historic Homes

Steve Marston works his way down West Commerical

It's been three years since Willits Weekly checked in with Steve Marston, the local contractor who has made a mission of helping restore the historic homes around Willits, and especially on his home street: West Commercial.

Marston started his West Commercial renovations 40 years ago when he purchased 126 West Commercial, where he still resides today. Next came 138 West Commercial, and then 135 West Commercial across the street. Willits Weekly reported on Marston's mid-way progress on the 135 West Commercial Craftsman bungalow in our October 10, 2013 edition.

The Benjamin Moore "Flora" light blue paint has since dried, the porch sanded, and the garage (which Marston jokingly calls "mini me") is almost complete. The rooms have also been readied for the arrival of home's newest tenant: Marston's 80-plus-year-old mother, Charlotte Furtado. She plans to move from Florida to Willits this fall to live in the bungalow and, of course, be close to Marston ... literally just across the street!

With 135 West Commercial in the bag, Marston has now turned his attention to 193 West Commercial, the home that sits on the inside corner of the Commercial and North Street intersections. This home is owned by Jim Siebert, who has lived there since 1943.

The new roof looks sharp on the 193 West Commercial home. Still awaiting its garage door, 135 West Commercial is ready for Marston's mom, Charlotte Furtado, to move in this fall. At top: The "sawtooth" dentil eyebrow details that Marston is eager to save and replicate on the 193 West Commercial cottage. Above, from left: The interior of 135 West Commercial is just what one would hope for: built-ins, dark wood and lots of light. The flared "Egyptian" skirting on 193 West Commercial. Growing up in the home and being a part of the Baechtel family, Siebert wanted to ensure the heritage of the home and the longevity of his part in Willits' history, and asked Marston to help with renovations. The house was originally called the Landcaster House after the first family who owned it.

New windows have been installed, a foundation was poured – the home had originally sat on redwood sleepers – and a new roof was installed. Marston noted this particular home is a pyramid Craftsman bungalow, which features many elements that pay homage to the interest in Egyptian life and style during the turn-of-the-century era when the home was built. Flared skirt siding, unique gables and other architectural details can still be seen that showcase the “pyramid” classification.

“I really try to keep a very close eye on any and all the details the original builders made,” said Marston. “When we completed the roof we were able to mirror the gable’s shape, and I’ve been adding the ‘dentil’ details over the windows and doors and really trying to make the work blend in with the originals.”

The dentil details are the little sawtooth-shaped trim that is showcased all over the house. Marston calls the pieces over the windows “eyebrows,” since the shape of the dentil not only graduates from small to large and back to small again as it spans across the window’s header, but also literally arcs away from the house in the center, creating a 3-D effect. Marston is replicating that same design over all the new window and door work.

Many treasures have also been found in the spaces in and around the house and yard. Several of the original redwood shingles Marston needed for repair were found and reinstalled on the siding, and old boards were found and reused throughout the home, too. Marston noted that new lumber isn’t milled in the same dimensions as old wood and that old wood – as long as termites or water haven’t gotten to it – is really better wood anyway.

Another find was a pile of cut stones that were used as the crosswalks when Main Street was still a dirt road. A few dozen of the foot-plus-long stones – once used to keep feet clean when crossing the muddy road – were found.

Plans to complete 193 West Commercial are in place, with a goal of getting paint on and dried in time for the winter rains this year.

“Renovating these old homes really adds to the town, and when we are able to bring these old girls back to life, we’re really helping give the town an identity and saving our history,” explained Marston. “We can keep the same style but upgrade them to be safe and modern for today’s lifestyle. We don’t have to make them museums; we can make them enjoyable and livable for another 100 years.”

Queen Anne Victorian gets new lease on life, looks for new guardians for next 100 years

Originally a home built for Mrs. Margaret J. Willits, widow of Hiram Willits, the town’s founder, the Queen Anne Victorian atop the hill at 166 School Street has always been a visual representation of Willits’ architecture of the past.

Built in 1901, the home features three prominent gables with decorative spindles and star bursts and decorative gingerbread throughout. Over the years the home was converted from a single-family residence into a duplex, as it remains today.

In 2010 Willits real estate aficionado Alan Grossman purchased the home, which had fallen into disrepair.

“I had to remove four layers of carpet and sub floor to get back to the original hardwood fir floors beneath,” reminisced Grossman.

The house also had survived an attic fire and years of tenant wear and tear. Grossman cleaned and refurbished the interior, and got to work on the outside with paint and details.

“Some of the gingerbread in the front gable was missing,” explained Grossman. “Luckily we were able to find some of it in a wood pile that was outside. We used everything we could, and then made what was still needed. Of the 30 percent that was missing, we were able to find about 80 percent of those missing pieces.”

Blair Rowland of Blair Rowland Painting made the outside shine with new coats of white, maroon and gold.

“I wanted something that would be different from the other houses, but still look vintage, yet contemporary,” explained Grossman.

The original front door, complete with a dial doorbell, still hangs on the home, and a plaque was installed on the front bay commemorating the home’s heritage and story in Willits.

Now, Grossman is ready to pass the stewardship of the home to a new party who will keep the story of Mrs. Willits’ home alive for years to come. For information: 354-3874.
